

GOVERNMENT OPENS RAISIN PRICE PROBE

JENKINS CASE IS BECOMING NATIONAL ISSUE

Government Note to Mexico Couched in Strong Terms
VICTIM REPORTS ON TREATMENT
Intervention Estimated Formerly to Need 450,000 Men

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—State department officials still awaited tonight a reply to the note warning the Mexican government that the United States would not tolerate any further mistreatment of William O. Jenkins, American consul agent at Puebla, who was arrested in connection with his recent abduction by bandits, and who is being held incommunicado in the United States and Mexico.

While the text of the American government's communication has not been made public, the summary published indicated it was one of the strongest ever sent to the Mexican government. It said the United States was both "surprised and incensed" to learn of the mistreatment of Jenkins and demanded his immediate release.

So far as made known, no report reaching the department today from Mexico City, but officials believed that he had not been released. Jenkins would be discussing the general Mexican situation today, state department officials said, but the subject would be the "army" and "start" estimated that complete intervention in Mexico by the American government would require 450,000 men.

Rebels Near
"The rebels are only a few miles distant," he wrote; "they have been there for years; they plant, cultivate and gather their crops entirely unmolested. The whole countryside is with them, and yet the government appears to make no effort to drive them away and give protection to this city. There are in the immediate vicinity of this city not less than a dozen important bands of rebels, all of them well armed, and government troops have been ordered to attack them. This is the situation as it is today in this city."

Ingenious Outrage
"It is impossible," said Jenkins, "to express my indignation at this outrage on the part of the local authorities. I am glad to say that the United States has taken no action in these attacks, only on the part of the government to avoid the responsibility of its criminal neglect of the protection of the city, and it is a source of much satisfaction to me that thousands of people here in this city and from other places as well, that the government's plan is well understood."

RATIFICATION OF TREATY MAY COME BEFORE ELECTORS

Lodge Declares No Compromise Possible; Await Message of Wilson on December 1

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Some promise efforts to ratify the peace treaty were thrown into the background today by developments strengthening the possibility that the controversy might be transferred to the political arena for a decision by the people in 1920.

Senator Lodge, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and the public leader of the Senate, declared in a statement that there was "no room for compromise" and urged that the reservations of the Senate majority be carried into the campaign.

There was no formal expression of opinion as to whether the stand would be taken by the Senate, but it was understood that the administration would not compromise.

The declaration of Senator Lodge reversed the position he and most other Republican senators had taken toward the ratification of the treaty. It was a clear indication of the change in the Senate's position, and it was a clear indication of the change in the Senate's position.

Under the President's orders the Senate voted down these reservations. It was also shown by a vote that there was a decisive majority against the treaty with the reservations.

Those reservations as presented to the Senate will stand. There is no room for further compromise between Americanism and the super-nationalist movement. The Senate will stand by its decision.

Judge Declares Against U. S.; Holds Liquor Not Intoxicating
ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—On the ground that beer of 2.75 per cent alcohol content is not intoxicating, Judge John C. Pollack of the United States district court here today pronounced a decision granting a temporary injunction to restrain the United States district attorney and the collector of revenue from interfering with manufacture and sale of this beer by St. Louis brewers.

DECLARES A. F. L. IS MENACE TO NATION'S WELFARE

SAMUEL HARDEN CHURCH, President of the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, recently made public in New York a letter he has written to Attorney General Palmer in Washington, in which he declares that the American Federation of Labor should be dissolved and its members should be put in the hands of the law.

Most of the points membership has left Washington and the general disposition is to await the President's message before attempting to go further with compromise efforts.

One compromise plan discussed today was to offer the treaty if the federal government would withdraw from the foreign relations committee, with the understanding that would remain there until some agreement had been reached by private negotiation for its ratification.

The Republican leaders, emphasizing some such plan must be adopted if the treaty is to be considered at all, declaring that the treaty would be a disaster to the country.

VALIDITY OF ACT ATTACKED
Objectors Allege Measure Obsolete Because Troops Demobilized

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The validity of the war-time prohibition law and the Volstead act was put squarely before the supreme court with the closing of arguments attacking and defending both measures. There was no indication as to when an opinion might be rendered.

At the hearing, the Federal government attorneys argued that the Volstead act was a necessary measure to enforce the prohibition law, and that it was not obsolete because the troops were demobilized.

REVIVE CONTROL OF FOOD SUPPLY

Shortage of Sugar Causes Stringent Action by Government

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—In an effort to meet the situation resulting in the present acute shortage of sugar, President Wilson today revived the wartime power of the Federal government over the nation's food supply.

In a proclamation, the President transferred to Attorney General Palmer the broad authority exercised by food Administrator Hoover during the war. While it is Mr. Palmer's present intention to exercise this authority only so far as sugar is concerned, he is prepared to use it to meet any similar situation affecting other food supplies.

Among the first acts of the Department of Justice, it is understood, will be the establishment of a price of 12 cents a pound for sugar, and the prohibition of the sale of sugar at a price higher than that fixed by the government.

"REDUCTION"

The Thing We're All Looking For

With most of us, though, it's a reduction in one expense account that we want—reduction in the "high cost of living." But some of us are still thinking about figures of another kind.

Does YOUR Figure Need Reduction?

If it does, that desired result can be achieved with the aid of a Nemo Self-Reducing Corset.

The Self-Reducing Corset supports the abdomen and reduces flesh by massage. Other parts of the body are reduced by various models.

The gentle friction between the strips and the body softens excess flesh, which is taken up in the circulation and carried away. The result is permanent reduction—with a stylish figure.

The Right Nemo Self-Reducing Corset Will Give You Graceful, Slender Lines

No. 431 is a Nemo Self-Reducing model for the stout woman of medium height. White, coral or lustrous; sizes 22 to 36 $7.00

BRITISH SEEK LABOR TRIBUNAL

Trade Unions Make Objections to Tentative Plans

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Great Britain, like the United States, is having great difficulty attempting to establish an arbitration tribunal to avert nation-wide strikes.

There is yet no adjustment of the dispute arising out of the government's refusal to include certain classes of workers under the provisions of the House of Commons Bill which was introduced last week in Parliament's session. And on an adjustment of this difficulty according to labor leaders, depends the success of this difficulty according to labor leaders, depends the success or failure of efforts to establish in Great Britain a National Industrial Council which, it was hoped, would settle such troubles as the recent railway strike.

The legislation in question would grant a forty-eight-hour week to all workers, but the government claims to have agricultural workers and seamen from its application. The trade unionists have stoutly resisted such a restriction of the labor law. The trade unionists have insisted that the government should not attempt to force a forty-eight-hour week to all workers, but the government claims to have agricultural workers and seamen from its application. The trade unionists have stoutly resisted such a restriction of the labor law. The trade unionists have insisted that the government should not attempt to force a forty-eight-hour week to all workers, but the government claims to have agricultural workers and seamen from its application.

The government has reinforced its attitude, and refused to make any concession. The workers' representatives, therefore, decided to first meet the employers' delegation and then, if no progress could be made, to demand that the full industrial conference should be called in order that they might confer with it and receive a further mandate.

Neither side shows indications of willingness to give way. Many persons in touch with industrial affairs believe it will end in the whole scheme for the settling up of a national arbitration body falling through, leaving the government to proceed with the forty-eight-hour bill on its own responsibility and without the weight of employers' and trade unionists behind it.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that the Trade Union Congress, in accordance with a resolution passed at its Glasgow meeting, will not establish a national working week of forty-hour hours. It is likely that the two bodies will appear before Parliament at the same time if the labor party can find opportunity for its bill to be discussed.

WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT IT?

What can be done about it, now that the treaty is "dead"?

Well; several things. But among them is not the carrying out of the threat to make "the administration" back down, and accept the whole of the original Lodge program.

In the first place, that program is supported by little more than a bare third of the Senate, and even this small number includes at least ten who voted for it only by agreement, on a deal, and do not believe in it. Probably not over twenty Senators really approve the Lodge program. Why should the President yield to the Senate on a plan which the Senate itself does not favor?

But, in the second place, even if the Senate wanted the Lodge program and the President were disposed to yield to it, it is beyond his power to do so. For the first requirement of the Lodge program is not that the President shall agree to it, but that England, France, Italy and Japan, or three of them, shall do so. And they won't. If they will not agree, nothing could be gained by the President and Senate agreeing. It would be better to leave the treaty dead than to resuscitate it only to execute it immediately. So the negotiations for a "back-down," if there is to be one, must be conducted, not with the "administration," but with the chancelleries of England, France, Italy and Japan.

One good way to conduct these negotiations, if it were temperamental possible for President Wilson to do such a thing, would be to turn the job over to Senator Lodge himself. If the President were to agree to accept whatever Lodge could induce the powers to accept, and let Lodge do the negotiating, we should doubtless get not merely an agreement, but the acceptance of that agreement by the Senate. Only the irreconcilables, who do not want any treaty at all, some fifteen in all, would oppose an agreement thus reached. However, this is perhaps too much to hope.

The next best method is to secure an agreement in the Senate itself. This is, unfortunately, obstructed by politics. Senator Hitchcock, for instance, pointing out that eighty Senators favor the treaty in some form, and that doubtless at least sixty-four of these could agree on one form, pathetically adds that "it is unfortunate" that these eighty Senators "have not been able to negotiate among themselves." These two camps must now come together. Unfortunately these two "camps" are Republicans and Democrats. They agree on the treaty, but they do not agree on the political moves, to make it capital for one party or the other. Election is too near.

Technically, the treaty is not so dead as to be beyond resurrection. If agreement can be had as to what to do with it, the procedure for carrying out that agreement is open. The President can resubmit and the Senate can reconsider the treaty. But there must be private agreement, outside, before this proceeding is worth while.

THE FIRM TONE

The firm demand for the release of Consular Agent Jenkins, if it is backed up, will be a welcome innovation in dealing with Mexico. We can afford to be lenient with the weakness of the Mexican government, but not with its dishonesty. No government in the history of Mexico, except that of Diaz, ever succeeded in repressing brigandage, and we should not hold Carranza too strictly to account for the action of any bandits he fails to squelch. But for his own actions, and for the action of those under his orders, we can hold him very strictly to account. The latest arrest of Jenkins was a Carranza act. It is therefore for Carranza to undo it.

Also it is not necessary to take seriously the claim of the Mexican officials that Jenkins kidnapped himself. They can doubtless produce plenty of witnesses who will swear that he did so, and they can find courts, if they are let, that will find him guilty. If our own authorities, on their own investigation, should reach any such conclusion, that would be a different matter. So far as they have gone, they have found the evidence quite to the contrary. But Carranza, his officials, his court and his witnesses, are not to be trusted. They must establish a reputation for honesty before any one will believe them. Meantime, they know what "must" means, if it is said in the right tone of voice. Let there be no weakening of that tone.

THE WOOD PROGRAM

A recent alleged secret poll of Congress as to Republican presidential preferences in which General Leonard Wood received most of the votes, is denounced by the representatives from the state of Washington, who assert that they voted for F. D. Roosevelt, and did not vote at all and that they were falsely reported.

Whether this particular poll was genuine or not, there can be no question that, at least until recently, the program of the professional programmers in Eastern political circles has been to make General Wood the Republican nominee. Recent reports indicate that this plan is being less energetically pushed, and it is not likely that it will be forced unless the idea really catches fire with the people.

Frankly, we doubt if this can happen. General Wood is, to be sure, a remarkable man, of great ability and real statesmanship, who would make a good president. But characteristically enough this is the only argument which the politicians did not make in his favor. They favor him on three grounds—first, the tradition of a military candidate after a war; second, that General Wood has a real and just grievance against President Wilson; and, third, that after Roosevelt's death Wood became the Progressive movement and is therefore the person to "unite the party."

All three of these arguments are pure shallow traditionalism. If there is to be a military candidate after the war, he should be a military hero of that war. It is not General Wood's fault that he was not such a hero, and it was a real and an outrageous personal injustice that he was buried alive during the war. Nevertheless he was buried, and the interment was successful. The experience of McClellan after the Civil War ought to show that a presidential candidate can not be run on a mere grievance, even if it is a just one. The issue next time will not be the personal faults of Woodrow Wilson, but the policies and leaderships of the two parties.

The third argument is the shallowest of all. The professional political manipulators have always had the hallucination that the Progressive movement consisted of Theodore Roosevelt personally. Naturally, if it were merely personal to him, its successor would consist of his close personal friend. But every one not afflicted with the myopia of the professional Eastern politician knows that while Roosevelt was the leader of the Progressive movement, it did not consist of him and was not his personal property. The most spectacular blunder of his life was his attempt to transfer it to Senator Lodge, who happened to be his personal friend but who was not a Progressive. General Wood doubtless is a Progressive in his personal views, but he has never been an outstanding part of the Progressive movement, and to fix him as the heir to that movement merely because he might appropriately have been the personal heir to Roosevelt's personal mementoes is simply to fail to realize that the Progressive movement is or ever was a real thing.

MAGAZINES

The magazines are coming out again, one by one, mostly of reduced size and with imperfect printing, and with the discouraged announcement that they may or may not get out next time. Two of them have got out regularly, by the interesting device of going back to the old block print, with modern improvements. They typewrite their pages, photograph them, and make an etched engraving from the photograph. It takes about nine hours to get the page on the press, after it is made up, and it costs rather more than the already high price of careful magazine printing, so there is no danger of its adoption by newspapers, which, instead of nine hours, are trying to reduce below nine minutes the interval between make-up and press. Also, publications like the Atlantic Monthly and the Saturday Evening Post, published outside of New York, have been coming out regularly. The stoppage has been in New York magazines. But this, curiously enough, is nearly all the magazines.

The nationwide dearth has illustrated two things. One is that we can get along without magazines. Shutting off newspapers would be like shutting off air. The social organism would cease to function, immediately. Shutting off magazines is like shutting off air. We have to use something else for a while, or go on with what we have. The other is that magazines ought not all to be published in New York. Their concentration there was produced by the artificial system of postal charges. If it cost exactly the same to ship a magazine from New York to San Francisco as from New York to Hoboken, then, measured by money, all points were equally distant from all other points. It was as cheap to serve California from New York as from San Francisco. In the interest of the universal distribution of such enlightenment as magazines furnish (some of them do) this system was probably justifiable, but the resultant concentration of the whole magazine publishing business in a single city was a definite disadvantage. Even mechanically its handicaps are now evident. Intellectually the limitation is still more important. To have all the organs of general circulation of a continental nation produced in the environment of a single city, and that the most provincial and least national city of all, is not good.

DO WE WANT SLAVES?

Secretary of State Frank Jordan has gone north to promote his favorite scheme of importing Chinese labor, and, in an interview at Salem, Oregon, he said of his prospective coolies that "under the proposed regulations they would not compete with free labor."

If farm work is a slave's job, then Jordan may be right, since his slaves would be farm slaves, rented to farmers alone, and forbidden to do any other sort of work. They would not compete with anybody except other farm-laborers, and these, Jordan evidently thinks, are or ought to be slaves, anyway.

But in all fairness, if we are to have slave labor in California, why confine its benefits to farm owners? There are other sorts of owners who would like slaves, too. The waterfront employers in San Francisco, for instance, would be delighted to buy a human cattle, to take the place of the unruly strikers. Chinese slaves could do this work. They do it, every trip, for the same ships, at the other end of the run. If there are slaves for sale or for rent (these are rented ones) there is a market for them on the docks. The railroads also could use a lot of them. They are finding it difficult to get enough men for track work. All the hotels could use them, for waiters, chambermaids and roustabouts. And for household service, if Padrone Jordan would import a few thousand good cooks and houseboys, and auction them off, we are sure they would bring a good price. If we are going to have slaves, why not have plenty of them?

It will be noted that Jordan has no illusions regarding his goods. He says they will not compete with "free" labor. Therefore they are not to be free. They are to be slaves, differing from the African sort only in that they are rented instead of bought. In every other respect they are to be unfree persons, bound to a particular owner or job, at forced labor. Jordan himself does not pretend that it would be safe to import them as free persons. It is only as slaves that he recommends them. And he claims that landowners generally want slaves. Perhaps! So do some other owners. But we had supposed that American policy regarding slavery was settled some time ago. Jordan is over a century too late. The African slave trade was abolished in 1808. The Chinese slave trade is not going to be reopened, in 1920.

AUTUMN PORTENTS

The amber glow creeps from the older fountains. Backward the shadow of the ground-hog shrinks. The lanes creek with the laden harvest wagons. And the fur thickens on the owl-eyed lynx. The hunter seeks cold mist about the moon. And in the bottom-lands, at morn. The print of tiny, thievish, fairy hands. Where the raccoon last night went slinking down. —Hervey Allen in Life.

The red flag has become so odious that the auctioneers of Rochester, N. Y., have discarded it as an emblem of their calling and adopted instead a blue flag. The only place where the red flag is tolerated is on the railroads, where its use is confined to warnings of danger.

Tardieu Given Lebrun's Place in French Cabinet

Andre Tardieu, head of the Country Commission for Franco-American War Materias, has been appointed to the post of Minister of Black and Invalued Regions according to a dispatch from Paris. The appointment was made by Premier Clemenceau after he had received and received the resignation of former Minister Albert Lebrun.

A YEAR AGO

The sun is shining today, warm. On the ruins of Audomars; The citizens have fled, Leaving the town to the soldiers.

This morning day is the tenth of November. We should relieve the French today, But no order comes. Rumors of peace travel like fire.

Early in the chill, dark morning We had entered the town; And now, after brief sleep, We ramble among ruined mansions.

One glorious day. No duty and no enemy. We seek food, preserves and ponies. Tobacco, clay pipes and drink; For tomorrow we may fight Germans And tomorrow we may die.

The day goes fast in feasting and Drinking Belgian Schnapps; All day columns of soldiers marching, Till the cobblestone streets.

We sleep at last and are roused at midnight To mount a guard on the Breant. The river through the town.

By the pontoon bridge in the outskirts. I establish a forward post In a shattered house near the river. With blood on the floor.

The night wears away and morning brings a driving rain. That drenches the sentry And pits the grey face of the river.

A detail of French engineers Comes to work on a blown-out bridge. Volubly they chatter, Working little.

Their officer comes running. Waving his arm. It is peace. Minia in guerra, Minia la guerra! They embrace and laugh and weep.

Now another winter closes down on And wet winds huff the blasted fields In healing sleep; And I am home. Trying to realize where I was A year ago. —Portland Oregonian.

FIRST PRAYER IN CONGRESS

J. W. Craighead of Academy, this county, sends us the following clipping from the Fulton, Oklahoma, Gazette:

"In looking over some old papers his father, not long ago, J. B. Reynolds, of this city, formerly of Guthrie, came across a newspaper clipping containing the words of the first prayer in Congress, made by the Rev. J. Duke, in 1777. Follows is the prayer:

"O Lord, our heavenly Father, high and mighty King of kings, and Lord of lords, who dost from Thy throne behold all the dwellers on the earth, and reignest with power supreme and uncontrolled, over kingdoms, empires and governments, look down in mercy, we beseech Thee, on these American states, who have fled to Thee from the rod of the oppressor, and thrown themselves on Thy gracious protection; declaring from henceforth to be dependent only on Thee; to Thee have they appealed for the righteousness of their cause; to Thee do they now look up for the continuance of that support which Thou alone canst give; hear them, therefore, heavenly Father, under Thy nurturing care; give them wisdom in council and valor in the field; defeat the malicious design of our cruel adversaries, convince them of the unrighteousness of their cause, and if they persist in their sanguinary purpose, let the voice of Thy unerring justice, sounding in their hearts, constrain them to drop the weapons of war from their unwarred hand in the day of battle! Be Thou present, God of wisdom, and direct the councils of this honorable assembly, enable them to settle things on the best and surest foundation, that this scene of blood may be speedily closed, that order, harmony and peace may be effectually restored, and truth and justice, religion and piety prevail among Thy people. Preserve the health of these bodies, the vigor of these minds, shower down on them and the millions they represent such temporal blessings as Thou seest expedient for them in this war, and crown them with everlasting glory in the world to come. All this we ask in Thy name, and through the merits of Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our Saviour. Amen."

THE DEAD SOLDIER TO AMERICA

I was young, and O God how I wanted to live! The whole of my life lay ahead, But my country was calling me—needed my strength.

I went. Seek me now with the dead! I was young, All the world was a sea of blue. Fair love led me on with a smile; But I died, and you, living, who stand in my place, Battle on—make my dying worth while!

My dreams I laid down on the Altar of Right, The blood of my youth stains the day. Joyousness, music, hope, memory, love, In an instant I cast them away—Ar, cast them away with a song on my lips.

Away with a jest and a smile, But the soldiers I fought for is lost in the gloom. Struggle on—make my dying worth while!

I followed no laws, save the laws of my land. My country I look as my bride, All mine to be, in the end of my all. I would her, I loved her, and died. To you who go forward from where I left off.

Though dark be the pathway each day, The Torch I have lit will get flame on the sky— Carry on—make my dying worth while!

MARRIAGE IN FRANCE

Getting married in France has always been something in the nature of running an obstacle race. Regulations, red tape, and restrictions bobbed up every corner, but since the war marriage is at a premium with the state and restrictions are fast being removed. The customary ten days, during which the banns must be published in the local church, is now substituted by a sentence of one year in prison for life. That would be unaccountable.

Twa Mouthfu's o' Naething

Weel sir, folk,
We've reached out
Taer the far corners
O' the whole world—
Fir tae lay oor hands
On this and that
And something else
In the line o' fruits
Fir tae plant out
In this here valley
O' the San Joaquin.
The wasp-stung fig
And the pomegranite
And the avocado
And the hardy date
And succulent oranges
And a sic-like
And we fetch them here
And pay out siller
Fir large tracts o' land
And fetch water tae it
And use dynamite
Tae loosen the soil
And plant out lang rows
And cut it oop
In smaller pieces
And sell chunks o' it
On lang time payments
Tae hame-wushin' folk
And the cut-ers-up
Make gude profits
And the buy-ers doon
Get gude lames
And prosperity shines
On the whole o' them
And a' is weel.
But there's one fruit
That we're awa'luikin'
And I rise tae remark
That I be-lec
I'll take the meller oop
And gae intae the business
Be me ainsel!
O' settin' oot a tract
Wi' that lousicous fruit
That grows in groves
In the tropic-arctic regions
O' auld Missouri
And is ken't far and wide
Among the natives

O' that possum paradise
As "Pawpaws."
Durin' a certain portion
O' me feverish existence
I wes weel acquent
Wi' that foreign shore
And I mind verra weel
Hoo these pawpaw groves
Wuld be situated
Close oop tae the kirk
And atween the time
O' Sabbath schule
And the followin' services
I culd sneak out
Frae the hard hardness
O' the family pew
And regale me inner mon
Wi' this nutritious fruit.
If they were juist reet
Ye'd break them open
And the yellow interior
Wuld smooch oop
Wi' big seeds in it
And ye'd squeeze hard
On the lower end
And eat awa'
At the ooper end
And if time allowed
Ye'd cut aff limbs
And peel the bark
Doon tae a certain point
And cut the wood oot
And plait the bark
In a blacksnake whitt
And on the end o' the hannel
Ye'd cut aroun'
Wi' great care
And pound the bark
Wi' a smooth stone
And slip it aff
And fashion a whistle
And slip back the bark.
I be-lec tae gudeness
That a pawpaw orchard
Aroun' Sunshineville
Wuld be verra profitable
And I ken mighty weel
It wuld be interestin'.

HARD LUCK

Man will soon be so secure against all forms of disease that he should soon be able to set death at defiance.—A Magazine.

I've been immunized against the pneumococcus;
I've been filled with bugs that battle with the flu;
Coughs and colds no more affright me, for their microbes seldom bite me,
And are barred from my system if they do.
But I dare not cross the street for fear a motor
Will approach me from behind and knock me flat.
So despite my best endeavor I don't think I'll live forever
For the doctors don't inoculate for that.

I've been proofed against the evil germs of typhoid
By a shot or two of arsenate of lead;
Chills and fevers do not tick me, for as soon as they attack me
They are met with savage drugs that kill them dead.
But a railroad train may dump me in a culvert
And alight, a mass of ruins on my neck,
And, when once it has descended, my existence will be ended.
For the doctors have no serum for a wreck.

I have taken all the vaccines yet invented
I'm secured against the tetanus and pipp,
Gout, catarrh, appendicitis, ear-ache, ague, laryngitis
Housemaid's knee and ninety-seven forms of grip.
But if I should tumble off the Woolworth Building
It is likely I should not survive the fall.
So in spite of my reliance on the miracles of science
I'm afraid I won't live always, after all!

WHY THEY MARRY

There seems to be no end to the discussion of marrying and giving in marriage, and the viewpoints of the dispassionate are as various as their previous condition of servitude. The latest to add fuel to the ever-lambent flame of the controversy is Dr. Kristine Mann, who tells the international conference of women physicians that "what every woman knows today is that 'pale, weak women are most appealing to men' because of the chivalrous instinct of pity aroused in a man by the sight of fragility and pitiable dependence. To this 23rd many will enter their respectful demurrer. There is nothing particularly attractive to a man in the prospect of having a life partner whose health is precarious and who is unable to look to the ways of her household or to be the participant in the husband's interests in his business or in his recreative hours. There are all about us the most beautiful and touching examples of devotion and interdependence between husband and wife, when the man or the other is infested by an inherited or an accidental ailment, but such an ailment is a liability and not an asset in the partnership, and while in the mid-Victorian days, of which we hear so much, it may have

The Mary Elizabeth Oil Company's No. 2 Anderson in the same locality, which has been fishing for a string of casing dropped 500 feet when lost on top the last, probably will be drilled. A number of wells in the Desdemona field, which have been shut down for lack of fuel, due to failure of the gas supply, have been run to use oil for fuel and are resuming operations.

In the Ranger Deep Sands the No. 3 Allen of the Leon Oil Company is reported as a 2000-barrel well in the 2500-foot pay. This is the third well for the tract, which is on the southern edge of the Pleasant Grove Extension. Also in this extension in the 1000, 1200 & 2000 foot pay, reported as a 2000-barrel well at 3525 feet. While pulling the casing in its No. 1 Hagman, a mile and a half north of Ranger, preparatory to abandoning it as a dry hole, the Lone Star Gas Company put a flow of between 75 and 100 barrels and now has a hole standing full of oil. This well was drilled to 3750 feet with only a showing of oil at 3300 feet. It probably will be shot. In the shallow sand north of Baker, the Hercules Oil Company's No. 2 Holloman is reported making 500 barrels at 1300 feet.

In the Homer, North Louisiana field, the Arkansas Natural Gas Company has a well in the 2400 foot sand, on the Shaw tract which made 500 barrels the first half-hour, and is estimated at 12,000 barrels. The well is about a quarter of a mile beyond production, carrying the field that much farther to the northwest.

M. Amiguet having sold all interest in the D'Alta Cafe to the Club Cafe, wants all bills presented to Hotel Collins within a week.

After having been nearly four years in military service, the whole period being spent in France, Major J. B. Buchanan has obtained his release from service and has returned to oil. He has obtained a position with the Royal Dutch-Snell company and will report to them for duty. Major Buchanan was formerly an employee of the Kern River Oil Fields, Ltd., and one of the managing committee. He left the service just before the outbreak of hostilities but as the first boom of the war went to Canada and entered the British service. He was wounded but has entirely recovered.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF BEAUTY SHOCKS SOCIETY OF LONDON

Mrs. Alma Steane-Hayne-Andrews-Stearns, whose tragic death several days ago, after the Victory Ball in London, after her return from a honeymoon, has shocked English society. She was twice married and divorced in America. Her son, bearing the name of his reputed grandfather, Prince Rupprecht of Austria, was born in Morristown, N. J. The post mortem is said to have disclosed a case of poisoning strikingly similar to that of "Billy" Carson, who was found dead after the first Victory Ball in London a year ago. Mrs. Steane claimed descent from the Austrian imperial family. She claimed she was the natural daughter of the dead Crown Prince Rudolf, son of Emperor Francis Joseph, and of Mary Vetsera, the baroness whom Prince Rudolf loved but could not marry. The story of their tragic deaths in the hunting lodge at Mayerling in 1889, where both committed suicide because their love was thwarted and the Prince was tied to a wife whom he could not cherish, is known to the world. In 1911 the Austrian government issued an official pronouncement stating that no child was born of the infatuation of the Crown Prince and the baroness.

A. work are invited. A program has been prepared by Mrs. Earl Towner, and the reception committee will be composed of the local board of directors. COURT'S RULING VICTORY FOR MEAT MAN

Butcher Case Injunction
Made Permanent
by Cashin

Board of Health Cannot Try Alleged
Violator

After having the matter under advisement for four days, Superior Judge D. A. Cashin yesterday issued a decree granting the application of Ben Kaufmann for a permanent and perpetual writ of prohibition against the board of health in its attempt to try him for alleged violation of the health ordinance. The board of health, composed of Mayor Toomey, and two retail meat merchants, on trial under charges of slaughtering and disposing of the carcass of a diseased animal, was held in contempt of court. Judge Cashin issued a temporary writ against the city, in which Mayor Toomey and members of the health board were made defendants, thus compelling the board to show cause why it should not be dissolved. The writ was issued on the ground that the board of health was acting in violation of the city charter, which provides that the board of health shall be composed of five members, one of whom shall be a physician, and that the board shall have no power to try or punish any person for violation of the health ordinance.

In effect the court holds that neither the state laws nor city ordinance give the health board the authority to try a defendant or to punish him. The court's decision is a victory for the meat man, as it prevents the board of health from trying or punishing any person for violation of the health ordinance.

The order of the court is to direct and command the defendant to show cause why it should not be dissolved. The court's decision is a victory for the meat man, as it prevents the board of health from trying or punishing any person for violation of the health ordinance.

PLAN FORMATION OF AUTO FREIGHT LINE

Trucks Would Carry
Freight Between L. A.
and Fresno

Plans for the formation of an auto truck freight line have been made by a group of men in Fresno and Los Angeles. The line would carry freight between the two cities, and would be operated by a company to be organized for the purpose.

The company would run trucks out of Fresno, via Visalia, Tulare, Bakersfield and Los Angeles. Each of the trucks would be equipped with a large trailer, enabling the company to haul a minimum of seven tons daily to Los Angeles and eight tons to Bakersfield. The latter consignments would be carried on the trailers.

There and a half ton high class trucks will be used in this speedy service. The commodity, it is pointed out, will be expressly convenient for the mercantile establishments in the vicinity and along the route.

Although capacity loads are assured from Los Angeles to Fresno, the promoters are not certain but that little freight will be shipped on the return trips of the trucks. Accordingly they are asking for opinions on the matter from local merchants.

Secretary Patterson of the chamber of commerce requests all merchants desiring the service to communicate with him immediately.

The Bureau of Service of the Raisin Association is securing the names and addresses of all growers who have vines of either variety of the Zante currant, namely: the Black Corinth, and White Corinth. The bureau will furnish the Department of Agriculture with the names of growers.

Legion to Give "Seven Percent" Dance Tonight

A real "seven percent" dance is to be given by the American Legion tonight at the Elks hall. It will be one of those old-fashioned occasions when "boys" and "girls" are partners of tripe and me.

Last week the floor was well filled, not crowded, but "comfy." It will be this way tonight the Legion state, and a large crowd is wanted to fill the empty space, under the glare of the Mazdas.

And if you can't dance, there is a large lobby where you can sit and watch the doings from above. The doings, more especially, want all those who are afraid about their dancing ability to be on the floor, as it is at these dances that one can learn.

JUNIOR COLLEGE SOCIETY MEETS

The regular meeting of the Fresno Junior college debating society, The Forum, was held recently with the following program: Piano solo, Margaret Dalacy; "A Bit of Humor," Vance Brown; "Reservations on the League of Nations Treaty," William Peters; Parliamentary procedure.

Plans were discussed for a membership campaign and the members feel confident that the organization will continue to grow in membership and in influence upon the activities of the college. Mr. Briggs was elected as advisor.

A resolution favoring the League of Nations and condemning the action of the opposing senators was submitted, but action on it was postponed until the next regular meeting.

TRAVEL UNSAFE IN MONTENEGRO

Mountains Are Infested With Bandits and Robbers

CETTINJE, Montenegro, Nov. 21.—Travel in Montenegro, even for friendly visitors, is not always safe. The mountains are infested with bandits and robbers. Recently two American Red Cross officers, Captain Richard Keller and Captain John C. Kelly, while taking a train from Cetinje to Podgorica, were held up at the point of the bayonet by members of a mountain band. After much difficulty the Red Cross men were able to escape the bandits, but they were not permitted to go on.

On another occasion, Lieutenant James Ashworth, on similar duty for the Red Cross, was held up by a robber band in the mountains between Cetinje and Cetinje. Lacking the means to shoot, the young officer, doubled the speed of his motorcar and escaped. After those two incidents all Red Cross trucks were accompanied by armed escorts.

There are only a few large towns, and communication between them is difficult. The largest town is Podgorica, which is the commercial center and is situated among the mountains. Cetinje, famous since the time of King Nicholas and the arena of King's popular play "The Merry Widow," which was written in the shadow of the neighboring mountains—is a town of less than 15,000 population and is the seat of the royalists. Its tallest building is three stories high. The most parts of the Balkans, there are picturesque Turkish mosques and minarets, to remind one of the times when the Moslems held sway throughout the Near East.

A great many of the people in Montenegro are extremely poor. They live in crude houses of stone and mud. These houses usually contain a single room and are without windows. Timber is so scarce that it has the value of gold. In the poorer sections of the country the people live in caves. In the town of Podgorica the correspondent counted 31 persons in a cavern hollowed out in the side of a mountain. They were crowded together on the bare earth floor and ate out of a common bowl. Their only food was that supplied by the American Red Cross. Their clothing consisted for the most part of scraps of buried and worn. The Americans have been trying to plant native silk as an industry, but in the higher Montenegro, a silk is considered to have forfeited her chances of marriage once she has been with a native. The peasants, however, have been quite ready to engage in this humane work. Thanks to the work of the Red Cross doctors and nurses, nursing gradually is becoming a profession among the women of Montenegro, where formerly it was looked upon as unclean and degrading.

Stanford Regrets

Paint Episode

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Nov. 20.—Stanford University students adopted resolutions expressing regret that persons supposed to have been Stanford students painted a red "X" on the corner gate at the University of California. Last night, several red-painted nearby houses, marked another red "X" on a private residence. Kidnapped Ronald Hunt, a California Senator, and carried him to Niles, an automobile. The action was taken at the request of Prof. C. D. Marx, acting president, in the absence of President Ray Lyman Wilbur.

Serbian Capital Shows Effect of War's Ravages

BELGRADE, Serbia, Nov. 21.—Belgrade remains today as the Germans and Austrians left it—well situated, but in ruins. The city is a mass of rubble and desolation. The lack of materials, money and labor, no steps have yet been taken by the authorities to restore the scores of residences, public buildings and other property that fell under enemy bombardment. Nothing has been done to repair even the royal palace, which, windowless, scarred and neglected, looks like a great empty barn. The Serbian capital has a gloomy, depressing air about it, and this atmosphere is shared to some extent by the people, who go about with sad, weary faces. Belgrade never amused itself. There are few cafes, restaurants, theatres, cinemas, or places of diversion or entertainment in Belgrade. At night the city has all the stillness and repose of a tomb. It may be, quite naturally, that the country is still mourning its losses, for it has been continuously at war for seven years.

The retail stores display only scanty stocks. Some of them are closed entirely. Cheap articles of jewelry and tinware find their way from Austria and Germany, while perfumes, scented soaps and silk stockings come from Paris. Wearing apparel of all kinds is high in price. The Serbian franc has fallen to low purchasing value.

As in most war-torn countries, there is a tremendous amount of reconstruction work to be done in Serbia. Broken bridges, shattered railways, ruined factories and destroyed machinery will have to be replaced. Serbians say the material, and to some extent, the money and labor, will have to come from the outside. For Serbia, starved and stricken by seven years of war, is almost destitute of means to accomplish this task herself. She is looking hopefully to the United States to help her in this direction. There is a constant plea for American engineers, businessmen and materials.

BRITISH DISCUSS SENATE ACTION

Some Praise, Some Lament Failure to Approve League

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 21.—The Associated Press—Regret, tempered by hope on the one hand and outspoken approval of Senator Lodge and his supporters on the other, accompanied the British House of Commons in its discussion of the League of Nations.

The Daily News, a warm advocate of the League of Nations, expresses the thought that, although the situation is grave, it is not yet desperate. "Short though the interval," the newspaper adds, "it will be long enough for the true will of America to assert itself and long enough for the opposing parties in the Senate to reach an agreement."

A league of nations with which America is not associated would find its power and moral authority tremendously curtailed.

The Morning Post thinks the official reason for the Senate objection to the covenant of the League of Nations was that "there are in America still citizens who have not lost faith in their own nation and heartiest pride in the sovereign free-

BOLSHEVIKS GLOAT OVER PROSPECTS OF FULL VICTORY

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A Bolshevik wireless message received here said: "The British bourgeoisie are dismayed and are attempting to arrange a peace conference in which Soviet Russia and its white guard enemies can participate."

After the Reds had driven Kolchak eastward, Denikine and Yudenich into the sea, the relations with Soviet Russia began to warm in the minds of the bewildered Allies. While the Entente is convening a peace conference, the Reds will finally defeat the last hundred impostors and the Entente will face the only lawful Russian government—that of the Soviets.

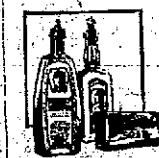

"When they found their President bent on transferring their rights and independence and subordinating the United States to a committee on which their country must always be in the minority," the newspaper added, "their pride of race and national honor revolted."

The Journal regards the Republican attitude as "worthy of free men and citizens of the great republic and a refreshing change from the international spirit which has grown out of the native hue of British parliament."

The Morning Post denounces the League as a system which contains the seed of national destruction.

RESTRICTIONS ON WHEAT LIFTED

War Time Embargo on Exports and Imports Removed

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Embargoes on wheat and wheat flour will be lifted December 15, it was announced by the United States grain corporation today.

Efforts of embargoes on both exports and imports followed the action of President Wilson in Washington today in signing a proclamation completely terminating the embargoes control which has been in effect for more than two years.

Control over embargoes first was exercised by the war time board to protect the supplies of wheat and wheat flour for the allies. Later control was taken over by Julius H. Barnes, wheat director under the war time board.

Releasing the Board of the embargo, Mr. Barnes said:

"This is one step in the necessary reconstruction of trade facilities, broken by the war, which must function when the grain corporation terminates its three years' work. While grain transport facilities and also demobilized international finance will probably prevent free trading between merchants of the various countries for some time, it is expected that, step by step, international trade may be re-built in the usual channels. Until this is widely accomplished, the grain corporation will continue to roll from its stocks of wheat and wheat flour the foreign trade that is not supplied under private business initiative.

The release of embargo also permits wheat and wheat flour to enter American markets free of duty under ruling of the customs service. It is expected that this will greatly enlarge the United States supply of spring wheat flour, which are favorites in the baking trade and which because of the partial crop failure in the northwest this year have been relatively in light supply.

Mr. Barnes also stated that the sales of the grain corporation from its accumulated stocks, largely in western markets to American mills under its advertised offer effective yesterday, have amounted to about 30 million bushels. He added that mills in all sections now are amply supplied with wheat, though some particular quantities of wheat are relatively in light supply.

Affects California

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—The demand of bakers for flour made from northwestern spring wheat instead of California winter wheat has been an important factor in increased prices of bread in this state, said W. A. Starr, second vice president of the United States grain corporation, tonight, discussing the removal of the government embargo.

Because of the partial failure of the northwestern crop this year, bakers have paid as high as $15 a barrel for flour, he said, and unless the Canadian or British levies an embargo to protect the supply of the British empire, the Canadian wheat which is selling for 60 cents a bushel less in Winnipeg than American wheat, Minneapolis should operate to lower prices of flour. Whether bread prices would fall he did not know, he said.

This demand for northwestern patent flour has resulted, Starr declared, in the anomaly of California, one of the leading wheat producing states in the union, having to seek flour elsewhere.

"California winter wheat makes bread that most people could hardly tell from regular wheat bread," he asserted, "but the bakers claim the public will not accept the local product. The northwestern wheat since better, and a 16-ounce loaf of it is larger than the one of California grain, although it really has no more nutritive value than the local flour. The grain corporation could sell them California flour in export bags at $10 to $11, and they could continue to sell bread at the old price, instead of advancing it."

Mary Pickford Wins Suit Against Broker

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Gladys Moore, widely known to motion picture fans as "Mary Pickford," was awarded a verdict by a jury today in a suit instituted by Mrs. C. C. Wilkerson, a play broker, who alleged she had obtained a contract for Mrs. Pickford with the Famous Players Corporation at a salary of $1,000,000, and that a 10 per cent commission was due her. At a previous trial the jury had decided in favor of Mrs. Wilkerson, but the appellate division set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—National guardsmen recently discharged from federal service are "harassed with military activities" according to the annual report of Major General Jesse M. Carter, chief of the militia bureau, issued today. Those who served in France "not only decline to enter the national guard but by their talk discipline others to do so" reports from the southeastern department said. This attitude will be met by temporary General Carter thinks and general reorganization of the national guard will be possible soon.

GERMANY'S TREASURE HOUSE, SPANDAU, BEING DEMOLISHED

Germany demolishes famous Fort of Spandau.

In accordance with the terms of the armistice, the famous Fort of Spandau, long known as the treasure house of Germany, is being demolished. In this famous fort, more than forty years ago, Germany stored 100 millions of indemnity she wrong from France through just such a war of aggression as has just ended in Germany's defeat. German women are doing most of the work in dismantling the famous fort. Each brick, taken from the building, is carefully laid aside for the future construction of homes. The town of Spandau is situated in Brandenburg, about nine miles distant from Berlin.

BRITISH GET GERMAN SHIP

United States Still Holds Seven Other Captured Vessels

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The United States shipping board purchased the steamship Imperator to the British military of shipping today. The vessel was received by H. M. Raeburn, director general of the ministry, in behalf of the government. He announced that the vessel would be operated by the Canadian line. It is expected to sail for England within the next 10 days.

Seven other former German premier ships, allotted to the United States to return troops from France, as was the Imperator, still are in possession of the shipping board. These ships amounted to 12,900 gross tons and are:

The Cape Finisterre, 14,500 tons; Mable (ex-Cleveland), 10,000 tons; Graf Waldersee, 12,100 tons; Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, 21,500 tons; Patria, 11,416 tons; Victoria, 12,241 tons; Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, 11,827 tons; and the Zepher, 11,416 tons.

Mr. Raeburn said that no decision had reached him as to the disposition of these vessels. These ships, with the exception of the Imperator, was in German ports when the armistice was signed. They were brought to British waters by German crews and there turned over to the United States navy. Several of the former German officers accompanying the ships on their initial trips under the American flag to aid in their navigation.

With the last of the American troops moved it was generally understood the ships would be turned back to the latter-called bounties and in anticipation of such action more than 15,000 British sailors were brought to the United States by the German and other lines to man and operate a portion of them.

On September 25, the day that the Imperator was to be turned over to the Canadian line went from Washington to the army authorities to remain in possession. Since the question is understood to have been under diplomatic discussion.

The remaining seven ships of the German fleet are at anchor or tied up to pier here with custodian crews of the United States shipping board in possession.

STATES UNITE FOR IRRIGATION

Plan Organization to Reclaim Western Arid Lands

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 21.—Permanent organization of the Western States reclamation association, which will work for the passage of legislation beneficial to the western and states was determined upon here today by delegates from 12 western states at an irrigation conference called by Governor D. W. Davis of Idaho. A recommendation submitted by the resolutions committee and adopted providing for a permanent association, secretary, treasurer and executive committee of one member from each of the member states.

The organization plan further that each state shall be entitled to ten votes in the association conference, though as many as 50 delegates may be appointed. It is provided that meetings of the executive committee must be held either in Salt Lake City or in Washington, D. C. The executive committee is empowered to designate the place where the next conference shall be held.

Delegates to form a permanent organization and adoption of an association plan were at the end of the day's session, which originally were devoted to the study of the report and brief address by a number of prominent irrigators in the West.

Acting Governor Harden of Utah called the meeting to order today at the state capital. Governor Davis of Idaho outlined the reasons he had called the conference and suggested formulation of a definite policy for development of all the western states.

Tonight the delegates listened to lectures on land development by Mr. Davis and C. J. Blanchard, state engineer of the reclamation service.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Pan-German friends in behalf of Dr. Karl Doerflinger, former vice-chancellor, have telegraphed him 800 marks to pay the fine imposed upon him for his refusal several days ago to answer questions propounded by the subcommittee of the national assembly inquiring into war responsibilities.

WILSON said he drew his own pistol and was about to fire when Underwood said "Don't shoot." This, and the fact that the first shot had attracted a number of children from a nearby school playground, whom he felt might have been injured, kept him from firing, Wilson declared.

The automobile ran a block down the street with no one at the wheel after the shooting. Condron was captured nearby tonight. The two men were locked up without being questioned.

LUDENDORFF'S OWN STORY

BRITISH ATTEMPT TO BREAK GRIP OF GERMAN ARMY TO THE MARROW

Clean Break Through at Battle of Messines but British Failed to Follow It Up—Eastern Troops Replaced Wasted Western Divisions

ABSENCE OF ATTACK ON RUSSIAN FRONT ALONE SAVED GERMANY IN 1917

"It was the Russian revolution alone that saved us from serious trouble," Ludendorff thus again admits the serious pass to which the German army had been brought in the spring of 1917. Although he had smashed the great offensive of the French on the Aisne, the allied guns had been taking a heavy toll of his men and the British were getting ready to deliver more of the hammer blows that had so staggered his army. It was only by taking men from the eastern front to replace the wasted divisions in the west that he was able to see this year's campaign to a finish.

He also reveals another chance which Marshal Haig did not exploit to the full. As at Arras in April, now at Messines in June the British tore a great hole in the German lines. It was days before men and artillery could be brought up to close the gap, but the British did not attempt to push through and widen the breach. This is another circumstance whose explanation by Haig will be awaited with interest.

By GENERAL ERICH LUDENDORFF

In the east vast changes had taken place. In March the Tsar was overthrown by the revolution, which was favored by the Entente. A government of pronounced Socialist leanings came into power.

The Entente's reasons for backing the revolution are not clear. They may have imagined they were confronted by a national movement which they could not ignore, and with which they consequently threw in their lot, or they may have thought that the Tsar had become inclined for peace, owing to fear of an internal collapse, and were therefore in favor of getting rid of him. Possibly there were other reasons.

At all events, it is certain that the Entente expected the revolution to bring them some advantage in the war. They wished at least to save anything that could be saved, and consequently did not hesitate to act. The Tsar, who had begun the war in order to please the Entente, had to be removed. This line of conduct received an inexhaustible will power, which would stick at nothing to win the war. The same thing would have happened if Sturmer (the Russian premier who betrayed Rumania) had really favored peace in 1916.

The outbreak of the revolution threw a strong side light on conditions in Russia. The army and nation were riven to the core, or it would have taken place. In Russia, as with us, the army was part of the nation; there, too, nation and army were one. How often had I not hoped

Navy. The loss of tonnage and material sunk was bound to tell. The month of September 1, 1916, came the spring of 1917 the most critical and perilous period though which England had passed since the outbreak of war. The Entente found itself forced to employ for naval warfare men and material hitherto destined for the conflict on land, and this continued in an ever-increasing degree.

Another Allied Offensive. After their great failure in April and May, 1917, and the collapse of Russia in the interval, England and France saw themselves faced with a new situation. They decided on a second great offensive, with the object of winning the war before the end of 1917. At the same time they wished to secure guarantees that final victory might be assured at any rate by 1918.

The chief weight of the blow was directed in the vicinity of Ypres, with a view to capturing the German submarine base in Flanders. The transportation of the new American troops to France in 1918 had to be safeguarded by a war against our U-boats.

In spite of the serious of our position on the Western Front, the absence of any Russian attacks in the spring of 1917 prevented a general crisis in our situation such as we had experienced in September, 1916. I had never been one to indulge in fruitless speculation, but I could not help considering what our position must inevitably have been had the Russians attacked in April and May, and met with even minor successes. We should then, as in the autumn of 1916, have had a desperate struggle. Our supply of munitions had diminished to an alarming extent.

If the Russian advance of July had occurred in April and May I do not see, as I look back, how G. H. Q. could have mastered the situation. During these two months of 1917, the results of our Aisne-Champagne victory, was the Russian Revolution alone that saved us from serious trouble.

On the Far-Flung Fronts. The Russian offensive took place later on, in July, two months after the Anglo-French attack, and even then it was not a united blow, as in the autumn of 1916. It was a divided push, and operating, as we did, from interior lines, we were able to repel and overcome our isolated opponents one by one.

On the Italian Front, too, there was violent fighting in May. The tenth battle of the Isonzo once more closed without victory for the Italian Army. In Macedonia an enemy offensive on a large scale collapsed before the Hungarian lines. The summer campaign again achieved good results in April and May and relieved our Western Front.

For the moment the French Army remained inactive, in order to recuperate after its recent defeat. Later on it continued itself only to local operations, and I could not foresee with considerable intensity. The main forces of the British and Belgian armies suggested by French troops were held in readiness for the attack

PLAN REVISION OF FEMALE WORK

Labor Conference Seeks Changes in Berne Convention

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Revision of the Berne convention of 1906, providing the employment of women at night was recommended today by the international labor conference. The principles of agreement were endorsed, but changes were advanced in most of the demands of the industrial and social revolution during the 13 years of its existence.

Under the recommendation the agreement would be applicable to "industrial undertakings" where less than ten women were employed. Specific definition of the term "industrial undertakings" was made incident upon each contracting state by the agreement and would include mines and quarries and manufacturing industries.

WAR TIME COAL RATION PLACED ON CHICAGO REGION

Miners Return to Work in Wyoming in Spite of Radicals

SUGGEST STATES TAKE OVER MINES

New Strikes Threatened; Restraint Order in Colorado

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Chicago and the northwestern railroad region today were placed on a virtual wartime ration of coal. Officials instructed retailers to refuse deliveries to persons with at least one week's supply on hand. While generally the coal situation had not improved, prospects of a wage agreement apparently were brighter.

An offer of a 20 per cent increase by the operators, although declared inadequate by the miners' leaders, was considered in Washington as a forward step toward paying the way for a settlement. More drastic negotiations in the joint conference was expected.

Steel manufacturers in Pennsylvania regarded the situation as serious, and said reserve supplies were being drawn upon, and that with union mines still closed in Pennsylvania and non-union mines producing much less than the necessary quantity, the immediate future of the steel industry caused much concern.

Coal rationing now embraces a large section of the country. The Southern states, east of the Mississippi River, were limited yesterday to purchases for home use to one ton. The week's supply ration for Chicago and the northwestern region extending to the Pacific coast, was announced today.

There was an improvement in Wyoming, where the bulk of the miners returned to work in the Rock Springs district where alien radicals were blocking resumption of operations. Arrest of four persons, alleged to be radicals, and the presence of troops at Union helped the situation.

New strikes said to be spreading in the New River field of West Virginia, and another ordered, effective in Colorado tomorrow, prevented an

PRaises SYSTEM AT WEST POINT

American Rather Than French Methods Justified by War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The army system of military training adopted two years ago and now used at West Point, was fully justified by experience in the world war. Major General John L. Chamberlain, inspector general, declared today in his annual report. He pointed out that ultimately it was found necessary in France to abandon the "defensive tactics" recommended by foreign experts and revert to the aggressive "American system."

"It is safe to say that no action ever before had available such superb personnel from which to organize an army," the report continued. "During the first six months of the training period there was a great shortage of clothing and equipment but this condition was to a large extent remedied by the beginning of the second year of the war. At the close of the war they found the equipment was not only superior to that in use by any of the foreign armies."

General Chamberlain, strongly recommended that in the future activities of charitable societies in connection with the military establishment be conducted and controlled by the government. Adoption of a rolling collar blouse along the lines of the British coat for the army with a collar insignia of cloth instead of metal and of a new trench cap with visor and ear flaps was recommended.

General Chamberlain, strongly recommended that in the future activities of charitable societies in connection with the military establishment be conducted and controlled by the government.

CHARGE HUGE SUGAR PROFITS

Two Confectioners and Broker Are Under Arrest

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 20.—Confectioners charging three men two confectioners and a broker with having profited in sugar were today by Robert J. O'Connor, United States district attorney for Southern California. This was the first drastic step taken in the fight against the government's campaign against profiteering in food.

The men were A. Blumenthal and E. S. Chandler, confectioners, and Joe Goldberg, broker. They were arrested and released under bonds of $5,000 each, pending preliminary hearings December 1.

It was charged the three profited in 20,000 pounds of sugar said to have been purchased by Goldberg from a sugar refining company.

It is alleged Goldberg purchased the sugar for $2.75 and sold it to Blumenthal at a profit of $5.50. This is charged as having been an excessive profit. Blumenthal and Chandler, through which the latter was to purchase a confectionery company from the former, it is alleged, conspired to defraud the government.

After Blumenthal had purchased the sugar, it is alleged, the agreement was to purchase of the confectionery was temporarily suspended, but Chandler is said to have taken over 10,000 pounds of sugar from the latter and sold it to Goldberg at 18 cents a pound. This he charged as having been sold at 28 cents in two lots—5,000 and 10,000 pounds.

The present prices fixed by the government permit refiners to sell sugar at not more than 40 1/2 cents a pound; jobbers and wholesalers at not more than 31 cents and retailers at not more than 24 cents.

ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS FOR COOLIDGE AND LOWDEN

Governor Coolidge Governor Lowden

Illinois Republicans have officially opened the Presidential campaign for 1920 by endorsing Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois. According to a report from Springfield, Ill., the Republicans heartily endorsed Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts, as the Vice-Presidential running mate of Governor Lowden.

THE DOVE
I heard her singing that war is dead,
And the beautiful dove with wings spread breathed the earth with joy.

She rode on the breeze of love to tell
That the heralds of truth had vanquished hell.
Then, lifting her voice above the clouds
she uttered a shiver in warlike speeches.

She melted the mists of gloom away
With the warming thrill of her song that day.

Then I heard her crying, "war is not dead,
For the law of love is underfoot!"
So the sorrowing dove now wails
While little men measure their might.

Against the brave deeds of our valiant
heroes,
And the brave deeds of our valiant
heroes,
And the grumbling that still hales!

Thill the gates of hell refuse to swing,
Thill you can meet in eternal spring
O, beautiful dove you must, must sing!—Portland Oregonian.

I UNDERSTAND
I hold the rocks called life between my hands,
And laughing at what others called their weal.

I crumbled them to dust to show my strength,
I ground to dust with mighty blow
on blow.

I cast my crumpled dust unto the wind,
And in the face of life I laughed out long.

And cried: "I'm done with all your silly ways!
I'm done with all your walls and mighty ways!"

But as I flung the dust unto the wind
It caught it in its hands with roar on roar
And flung the crumpled danks into my eyes!

Now hope and light and happiness
no more,
For blind I stand and curse the power that gave Me strength to crumble life beneath
my hand;

And yet I know—as I can only know—
The power of life—I see—I understand.

"You want my daughter, do you?" I presume," said the girl's father. "I suppose you think you have a right to her. But she is not for sale. She is not a thing. She is a person. And you must treat her as such."—And your daughter? "You thought a year ago," said the father, "that I was old man, but I cannot afford to throw away $200 a year. Another father has found that he can do it on paper."

STRIKERS SELL CHEAP MEAT

Master Butchers Declare Poorest Class of Goods Carried

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Investigations of charges of profiteering on the part of master butchers were made today after a duration of three weeks. The strikers, have been selling meat at a lower price than ordinary wholesale.

Yesterday their quotations for meat of medium grade were as follows: Porterhouse steak, 1 pound, 18 cents; round steak, 1 pound, 15 cents; chuck steak, 1 pound, 12 cents; lamb chops (loin), 15 cents; pork chops, 15 cents; smoked ham, 25 cents; lamb, 20 cents and veal cutlets, 25 cents.

The master butchers, doing a cash and carry business, quoted the following prices:

Porterhouse steak, 1 pound, 28 to 32 cents; round steak, 1 pound, 25 to 28 cents; chuck steak, 1 pound, 18 to 20 cents; lamb chops (loin), 25 to 30 cents; pork chops, 15 to 18 cents; smoked ham (cured) 50 to 55 cents; lamb, 20 to 25 cents and veal cutlets, 25 to 30 cents.

The strikers claimed that they handled the grade of meat known as medium two, also classified as medium. The master butchers, however, asserted that the strikers' shops carried the poorest grades of meat, and which they did not handle, as it would not satisfy their customers, and that the demand for such meat exists only in the poorest parts of the city. A government inspector also declared the strikers sold only inferior grades.

The master butchers said the medium grades of meat they sell are quoted as follows by the big packers: Porterhouse steak, 1 pound, 21 to 22 cents; round steak, 15 to 16 cents; chuck steak, 12 to 13 cents; lamb chops, 15 to 16 cents; pork loin, 24 cents; smoked ham (whole) 25 to 28 cents and lamb 28 cents.

MONTENEGRO IS TORN BY STRIFE

Royalists and Republic-cans Meet in Many Clashes

CETINJE, Montenegro, Nov. 21.—While the Allied statesmen at Paris are deliberating on the fate of the nation of Europe, Montenegro continues its century-long strife of royalists, republicans, and other factions, and seems not only to give little attention to the fate reserved for it by the great powers.

There is a faction of the people who desire a return of King Nikola and the restoration of the monarchy. This is constant strife between the royalists and the republicans. The royalists are taking the form of a small group of men in the mountains. They are not taking the form of a small group of men in the mountains. Submarine L-5 Laid Up for Repairing VALLIJO, Cal., Nov. 21.—The submarine L-5 is in a repair dock here today, having been disabled Wednesday while bound from San Pedro to San Francisco.

Head of Lake Scutari, there was a massed company of 250 Montenegrins preparing to attack an Italian garrison on the opposite side of the lake. Many of these Montenegrins, who were mostly dressed in civilian clothes, were boys of 16 and 17. Sons of the older soldiers had been to the United States and had returned to America. The attack on the Italians took place the next day, and many casualties on both sides are reported.

Slightly smaller than the state of Connecticut in area, Montenegro has a population of less than a quarter of a million. It is a rugged, mountainous country, and its valleys are made productive only by careful husbandry of the soil and intensive farming.

One would not think the Montenegrins would be so numerous. But tuberculosis will find a way to go anywhere, and the pupils of Public School 60, way up in the north, have learned to do their studying out of doors, so that when they become men and women, they will be able to laugh at the ravages of the Great White Plague. The winter costume is comfortable even with the heavy fur cap and the heavier fur coat. The children of the nation are the greatest asset. They make the future statements and future bulwarks of the nation.

DEFEAT REBELS: VLADIVOSTOCK

Government Now in Central of Siberian
City

VLADIVOSTOK, Tuesday, Nov. 18.—(The Associated Press.)—Revolutionary forces which for two days have attempted to obtain control of this city were completely defeated by government troops today. General Gaidar, the revolutionary leader, was wounded and captured and his followers were driven from every point of vantage by government troops. Shortly after midnight government troops moved two 2-inch field guns into position at the Vladivostok bridge, by which this main thoroughfare of the city crosses the river. The bridge is only 100 yards north of the station. The strongest position of the rebels. A little later, troops reinforced by 100 cadets from the naval training school proceeded to the Japanese center of the city, while armored cars began arriving at the bridge.

Before the battle opened, international policemen and three of the railway station, from which they took three Russian women who had been marooned there since the fighting started.

One clock there was a burst of machine gun fire against the rebels holding the railway yards and gunboats started to drop shells on the station. Some of the shells set fire to the stacks of the American replacement battalion. Rebels Control Rails.

While government officials expressed the belief there would be no further fighting, the rebels seemed to be in control of the railway yards, although exposed to artillery fire from the high ground about the city.

The rebels were at 4 o'clock on the station from the gold mine on the Vladivostok bridge. Later the fighting became general with the revolutionists falling back everywhere. Finally being driven from the station.

The Social revolutionary Zensov group had proclaimed their new Democratic representative government Monday night. A few hours later the fighting forces clashed for possession of the railway station. Approximately 5,000 rifle and machine gun shots being fired before nightfall. Government forces under General Gaidar, from the entire town with the exception of the immediate vicinity of the station and in addition controlled the line of hills west and north of the town. Machine gunners were placed at several points. Allied troops patrolled the city with American troops protecting American organizations. The United States consul, Mr. Williams, and Admiral Rogers, are lying in the harbor.

Isolated on top of General Gaidar's train near the station was a green and white flag, the colors of the Siberian assembly, which was displayed by Admiral Kolchak. On the banner was inscribed the words "For a constituent assembly." For a constituent assembly. For a constituent assembly.

After the proclamation of the revolutionaries yesterday morning, in which they announced their opposition to Kolchak, a semblance of a ministry was formed on General Gaidar's train. General Gaidar, Yakushtif being named president. General Gaidar, a Czech who commanded the 1st army of the Omak government until his recent resignation, was named commander-in-chief of the new government's military forces.

Announcement was made by the allied military command, 2500 troops last night did not decide that the allies should not interfere in the movement, which was considered political in character.

Property of Russians and allied subjects was protected last night by American, Japanese, French, Italian, Serbian, Lithuanian and Russian soldiers, forming the international police force. All approaches to the railway station were under heavy guard.

After three raids against the railroad station, General Gaidar's troops occupied the building and he established headquarters there at about 5 p. m. The losses in this fighting were six dead and 24 wounded on the Gaidar side. The losses to the government troops were not counted. It is estimated that 100 civilians were victims of the firing, some being killed.

The American Red Cross is caring for 54 wounded.

A British Red Cross officer was killed at the station. The body of Eugene Lark, deputy sheriff of El Centro, Cal., who died Tuesday, three days after he had been shot by a Mexican policeman at Mexicali, Lower California, arrived here today and was placed in the Lark family vault at Rosedale cemetery.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—American exports in October, 1919, were valued at $272,000,000, an increase of $75,000,000 over those in September, and of $120,000,000 over those in October, a year ago, according to a statement today by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. Exports for the ten months ended with October were valued at $2,614,000,000, an increase of $1,410,000,000 compared with the corresponding period last year.

October imports totaled $116,000,000, a decrease of $20,000,000 from the high mark of September, but an increase of $18,000,000 over those in October, 1918. For the ten months period imports amounted to $2,112,000,000, a gain of $545,000,000 over the corresponding period the year before.

REPORT STATE FREE FROM FLU

State No Epidemic This Fall; Few Sporadic
Cases

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 21.—Figures on influenza cases made public today by the state board of health show there has been no recurrence of the disease in epidemic form in California this fall and point a sharp contrast to the situation as it existed at this time last year.

During 1918 it was in the month of October that the greatest number of cases were reported, while the heaviest death toll occurred in November. From the period of October 5 to November 2, 1918, cases of influenza reported were 121,132 and deaths numbered 5,331.

For the same period this year 187 cases of influenza were reported and the heaviest death toll occurred in November. From the period of October 5 to November 2, 1919, cases of influenza reported were 121,132 and deaths numbered 5,331.

HELP FOR THE HAREM UNCLE SAM STEPS IN

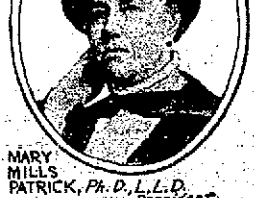

1919 GRADUATING CLASS REPRESENTING 3 TURKS 4 ARMENIANS 5 BULGARIANS 6 GREEKS 1 HEBREW

AMERICA is helping all the world. No one needs her more than the shut-in women of the Near East. Christian, Moslem and Jew, they all ask to have windows opened into a larger world. Thousands of them want education and other thousands, shipwrecked by war, need training for self-support.

Constantinople College for Women, conducted by the trustees of the American College for Girls at Constantinople in Turkey—chartered under the laws of Massachusetts, with American headquarters at 70 Fifth Avenue, New York City—is doing a great and meritorious work among girls by introducing courses in practical arts and professions, so much needed in the new social reconstruction of the immediate future.

The purpose of the college is character building through higher education. It aims to guide the nations of the Near East toward democratic principles, the American spirit of independence and courage and the love of freedom and truth.

Constantinople College has had a long and interesting history. It has lived through epidemics, massacres and revolutions. In seven years it has weathered four wars. The last two years have been the most critical in its career. It has endeavored in every way possible to be of service to the suffering people in the city and in the Bosphorus villages. It has protected and cared for persecuted Armenian girls whose fate, had it not been for kind American friends, would have been pitiful.

Famine has come very near the gates of the city; there have been several serious epidemics; prices of food and fuel have been almost prohibitive; life and property have been insecure; and for many months the college authorities feared the buildings would be seized for government purposes. In spite of these difficulties the work of the college has gone on. It is a wonderful record of American achievement and perseverance.

Turkish women who, in the past, have been kept at home in the strict est seclusion have been forced by war conditions to break away from custom and become wage earners. For centuries they have received the very slight education required for their limited sphere. With this poor equipment many are now trying to earn a living. The time has come when Turkish women who have long needed and conscientiously desired education are at last permitted to obtain an education.

On every hand there is not only an increased desire for education, but an increased opportunity, unprecedented and amazing, for the educated woman to be of service. Closed doors have been opened and fifteen municipalities of the Near East are waiting for the help of their own trained women.

With a modest beginning as a mission school on the Asiatic shore of the Bosphorus, Constantinople College has developed from year to year until today it has the distinction of being the only college of its kind in the Near East. It occupies a site of fifty-four acres on a hill at Arnavutkoy, on the European shore of the Bosphorus, about six miles from the center of the city. It has a faculty of American women and Near Eastern scholars. Its curriculum is based on those of the best women's colleges in the United States. The work of Constantinople College is entirely non-sectarian; the students include girls of every faith. This institution is not endowed. It is maintained by voluntary contributions supplementing student fees.

COAL OPERATORS SUBMIT OFFER

Miners Refuse; Conference Prospects Appear Brighter

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Though operators and miners of central competitive fields remained hard looked at day today in their negotiations, a new wage scale contract, prospects for an agreement that would settle the coal strike were considered brighter tonight than at any time since the strike was called.

The operators offered to the miners a representative flat increase of 15 cents on a ton of coal mined and 20 per cent increase for day workers. John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, categorically stamped the proposition as wholly inadequate, but both sides plainly took the offer as a breaking of the ice and an opening for trading tomorrow.

Offer inadequate. Typical Lewis of the miners, after the close of the session, said he considered that the operators' proposal had "contributed nothing to the settlement of difficulties," but indicated that miners were preparing to come down a degree in their demands for a six-hour day and a 60 per cent increase.

The operators are proposing some thing they know cannot be accepted, he said.

Thomas T. Brewster, chairman of the operators' scale committee, refused to discuss the proceedings, but the compromise offer made by the operators was outlined more fully by his associates.

The proposed wage advances are the absolute maximum to be offered, W. T. Guthrie, member of the operators' wage scale committee, representative western Pennsylvania, and George H. Harrington of Illinois, the spokesman for the operators, said tonight.

Failure on the part of miners to reject the proposition would mean mediation by the government, Guthrie said.

They estimated that the price of coal at the time it leaves the mine would be increased from 25 to 40 cents per ton as a result of the offered advances, but declined to speculate as to how much might be added by middlemen before the coal reaches the consumer.

MORE MONEY AND PEOPLE NEEDED

Resources of California
Await Population of Right Kind

CHICO, Cal., Nov. 21.—For proper development of its resources California needs more people and more money.

State Controller John S. Chambers declared in an address tonight at the closing session of the California Fruit Growers Association convention.

Controller Chambers quoted Governor Simon Humberger of Utah as saying the states of the Pacific slope "do not together for their mutual advantage."

Mr. Chambers, recording Governor Humberger's suggestion but said that before the states of the Pacific slope could work together to appreciable industry along national, logical lines if the best results were to be obtained in the shortest time.

As indicating the chief industries of California and the main line for development, Mr. Chambers quoted the following figures as covering the output of 1918: Minerals, $72,211,610; oil, $127,459,231; lumber, $28,000,000; and agriculture, $145,151,011.

"What California needs," said Mr. Chambers, "is more people and more money—more people of the right sort; people who can assimilate, people who are equal, people who meet us but who are not inferior."

"The way to get these people is not only to tell them of our climate and soil, our mountains and valleys, our forests and rivers, but also to tell them of our great

FIGHTS SHIP LEAK BY USING CARGO

Copra Loaded Vessel
Reaches Honolulu
After 58 Days

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 20.—The three-masted schooner S. N. Castle, 55 days out from Apia, Samoa, with copra for San Francisco, came into this port recently using her cargo as fuel for the donkey engine which was fighting a leakage at the rate of 12 feet daily.

Aboard the Castle, besides her skipper, Captain Edward Anderson, were the captain's wife and 12-year-old son Harry, two mates and a crew of seven.

Both officers and crew stated that had the schooner run into heavy weather the donkey engine would have been unable to keep the craft from foundering. As it was, the fresh water had to be preserved for human consumption and salt water used in the boiler of the "donkey" that kept the life-saving pumps going.

The last meeting of the Castle left San Francisco for Redding, California, from Sydney to Apia she made a record run of 2500 miles in 17 days. The leak already had been sprung and at Apia "leaking" was called to the commander's attention, but shortly after leaving the Samoan port matters grew worse and the anxious trip to Honolulu dragged out to 58 days with the pumps working top speed.

fact system, our land settlement project and the department of agriculture, as well as to tell them of the wonderful natural resources of our state, which the fruit growers and farmers have built up for themselves.

Vigorous appeal was made by Mr. Chambers for action that would cause the breaking up of large land holdings in California, and he quoted figures to show that of the farm acreage in California, less than one-half is improved.

RAIL SYSTEM IS BAD, SIBERIA

American Administrator
Faces Transport Difficulties

OMSK, Nov. 21.—John F. Stevens of Chicago, administrator of the Trans-Siberian railway, has experienced difficulty in his efforts, with the aid of an international committee, to convert the Trans-Siberian railway into an efficient railway system.

One of the most serious obstacles he encountered was the insuperable objection to modern methods of railroading, on the part of Russians in places of authority. The system of car distribution has proven a stumbling block which precluded any marked improvement in carrying capacity. If it were possible to convert, once and for all, the great transcontinental system with local ramifications in each state traversed, committees of politicians in an unnumbered number of places of authority to distribute freight cars as they chose without any control by the railway management, one might find a parallel with the actual situation in Siberia.

To obtain a car a shipper must apply to the committee in control in his district, comply with many requirements which have nothing at all to do with the hauling charges, and await his turn. Every day is one day of favoritism in the matter of distribution. It is no secret that the supply of cars is manipulated so as to keep the "big game" in the hands of the railway management.

Another factor working against greater efficiency is the arbitrary power of these in control to place an embargo on movement of any class of merchandise at will.

Passenger traffic is paralyzed by the fact that thousands of cars are employed by Russia and Russia's tributaries of many sorts who live in them months on end and when the time comes they are not allowed to leave. Representatives of one nation abuse the right of another to occupy 200 first-class passenger cars and 1,500 observation cars, besides upwards of 12,000 box cars.

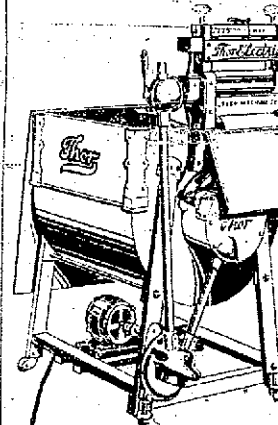

Trains other than the Siberian Express are few and irregular. There is an abundance of locomotives and of cars according to best information. The only requisite is to get them to use free from present restrictions.

Find Official Guilty of Embezzling Funds

WILLOW, Cal., Nov. 21.—L. W. Moore, formerly treasurer of Glenn county, was found guilty by a jury today of a charge he had embezzled $10,000 of county funds.

Moore was arrested by the sheriff after charges of a shortage were made by an assistant who notified the county board. It was alleged that Moore had converted to his own use money received as interest payments for county funds on deposit in banks.

Thor

The Cylinder that Never Corrodes

You never have to scour out a Thor to get it ready for light clothes. No matter how soiled, how muddy—the kiddies' play clothes may be—they never leave a bit of deposit in the cylinder of the Thor. And the hand-polished maple cylinder can't corrode—it's always spotlessly clean.

You see this smooth, white maple cylinder swings clear of the outer wall of the washer nearly two inches. That means that all the sediment goes in the metal lined part—and is quickly rinsed out. And instead of the sour, soapy, unpleasant odor and the gummy sediment that you find in a metal cylinder—there's just the clean sweetness of the polished maple that "tempers" and hardens like old ivory.

DEVELOP AMAZON VALLEY TRADE

All Kinds of Industries
Springing Up Since
War

PARA, South of Amazon River, Nov. 21.—Business conditions in the Amazon valley are beginning to recover from the disturbance of commerce caused by the war. Rubber estate owners and business men generally, realize that the competition of Oriental "plantation" rubber, which has forced the market price of that article down to a point where it is no longer profitable to produce in this valley, is really a blessing in disguise, since it is bringing about the development of the other natural resources left untouched so long as rubber monopolized all attention in the valley. Foodstuffs that used to be imported from abroad, or from other parts of Brazil, are now being raised locally.

A party headed by Henry A. Fleming of New York, which has been investigating the commercial possibilities of the Amazon valley, has returned to this city after a two-months' tour of the Amazon and its principal affluents, nearly 5,000 miles of rivers being covered in the course of the trip. Mr. Fleming is receiver of an American company with extensive docking, shipyard and navigation property in Para.

The main river was ascended for over 2,000 miles, as far as Iquitos, Peru, and along the Javary, Purus, Negro, Xingu, Moju, Pucallpa and other rivers for varying distances. A vast amount of valuable information and data has been gathered as a result, which is being placed at the disposal of American manufacturers, importers, exporters and others interested in the development of the Amazon valley. Many inquiries have recently been made by Americans seeking information regarding land available for cattle raising, grain growing, and minerals, which indicates an increasing interest in the United States in regard to the Amazon country.

According to Mr. Fleming, the most encouraging sign noted on the trip was the increase in the production of foodstuffs of all kinds. Mandioca corn, sugar cane, rice, beans, bananas, melons, fruits of many species, and occasionally tobacco, cotton, have been planted in small patches along the river banks near the towns and settlements. Before the war practically all foodstuffs had to be imported, as the increase in rubber gathering was so high as to make labor unavailable for agricultural work. Most of this planting is done on the low-lying banks of the river, and at least two crops of maize, beans, manioc, etc., are gathered between floods.

One of the staple products affected by the rubber boom was "cachaça," which was distilled by the burn of high sugar, most of the large Caram plantations had to be abandoned; today they are being cleared and restored and new areas are being planted.

Since the anti-fraternization regulations were revoked by army headquarters several weeks ago, the cafes in Coblentz have been crowded each night with soldiers and civilians, and many of the German men have openly asserted that the Americans were nothing but cowards.

Cafes in Coblentz and other towns in the zone held by United States troops have been doing lately the greatest business of their existence. One in Coblentz which is conducted by two Americans who recently obtained their discharge from the army, seats twenty-two hundred persons. Yet on Sunday afternoons and evenings, the crowd becomes so great, Americans and Germans all together, that on several occasions the military police had to be called to maintain order.

YANKS ENTERTAIN GERMAN WOMEN

Cafes in Coblentz Crowded; Men Object to Attention

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN GERMANY, Nov. 20.—Among the civilians in the American occupied area complaints, originating with the German men, are often heard to the effect that the American soldiers are "spoiling" the German girls by buying luxuries upon them and by spending money recklessly for presents, wines and good things to eat.

Since the anti-fraternization regulations were revoked by army headquarters several weeks ago, the cafes in Coblentz have been crowded each night with soldiers and civilians, and many of the German men have openly asserted that the Americans were nothing but cowards.

Supplying Him With Confidence

By Joella Johnson

As she walked around the picnic grounds with her sweetheart, Jerry Collins, Lydia could not but envy the other girls their prosperous look. And many of them had gone off and got married since she had graduated from high school, she reflected. Yes, there was Mary Cummings with her husband and Molly Gray with Leon, whom she would marry in September—all seeming prosperous and happy—except herself.

Her eyes unconsciously wandered to her sweetheart, Jerry, who was walking by her side. She eyed him affectionately, then a little frown of anxiety gathered over her eyes as she looked him over. Jerry all unconscious of the scrutiny.

"I don't know what it can be, Lydia," he said, going on with the conversation which she had brought up, as usual. "I guess it's just luck with those fellows, or fate or something. I've done my darndest to make old Durham see I'm worth more money, but he don't give it to me."

"Maybe he's right," said Lydia, a little reflectively. "If a man is worth more he will get it, and if he doesn't he ought to leave and make some other man realize his worth," she said conclusively.

"But, Lydia—leave—why—its preposterous—suppose I couldn't get another job—and suppose I was out of work for a long time?"

His refusal was cut short by Anne Richardson, who sauntered up to them with her fiancé.

"Meet Miss Manning and Mr. Collins," Anne said, as she introduced Lydia and Jerry, and then turned off with Lydia, while Mack Hankin, her fiancé, opened a conversation with Jerry. When the two girls had sauntered toward a rugged bench down the side lane just off the midway Anne said: "You know we're going to be married next month. I've really been engaged six months, but we haven't announced it until Mack got on his feet. He has a dandy place now, and so we're ready to take our chance." She smiled pleasantly at the realization of Mack's success and Lydia tried to reflect the enthusiasm. But deep down in Lydia's heart her own disappointment cut all the deeper.

There must be some way to put Jerry on his feet Lydia said to herself. Then the thought struck her to confide her trouble in Anne.

When she was through talking Anne nodded understandingly. "I know," she said; "I know just what it is—it really isn't because Jerry is not doing his share, but he lacks confidence in himself. He is afraid to start things for fear they won't turn out right? It's self-confidence, Lydia, I tell you," she repeated emphatically. "That was Mack's trouble, too, until suddenly one day he found himself alone in the office. Some big deal had to be put through immediately—making or breaking a contract by long-distance telephone—and Mack was a little panicky at taking the risk when the call came in. There was no one in the office, every one being out to lunch at the time, and Mack took his big chance and O. K.'d it at his own risk. It was his making," Anne declared proudly. "His boss recognized his power of initiative and gave him some bigger responsibilities."

"But how—" began Lydia, then she abruptly broke off her inquiry to remark "that was just fate. Anne, it might never happen again—in a million years."

"Well," Anne reminded her, "why not take advantage of the experience, why not have Jerry get up his self-confidence without having to—won't he get all the more credit for it?" Lydia had been gazing idly about her spirits a little low at the nebulous prospect, when suddenly Anne uttered a little exclamation of enthusiasm. "I've got it, Lydia," she said, "I've got it, a scheme—Jerry's got to start things for himself without your being in on his plan. He can have no leaning post—it's a hindrance rather than an asset."

"Suppose," she began in a confidential whisper, leaning closer to Lydia. "suppose I play fortune-teller and tell him some inspiring things, I'll make him believe they're true and he'll bank his future moves on them."

"Great!" agreed Lydia, enthusiastically. "Nothing like trying everything on the calendar," and they fell to discussing details of the impromptu plan. An hour or so later Lydia, a bright-eyed sparkle in her wide blue eyes than she had ever had for weeks past, sauntered in a supposedly aimless fashion down the midway of the picnic grounds.

"Look, Jerry," she said, suddenly pointing to the red and yellow gypsy fortune-teller sign over a little table behind a clump of trees. "Let's go in here and have our plans read." Then as she moved closer to the little gypsy she exclaimed eagerly: "It's Madame Paula, the great Egyptian palmist. She's a wonder! Only a year ago she told Ralph Le Bonno's fortune—and see—didn't it all turn out as she predicted?" Lydia asked eagerly.

"All right, Lydia," Jerry agreed pleasantly; "I'll go in to her, but I doubt—" They were into the cave before he finished his protest. The Egyptian witch, swathed in gay colors with a heavy mantle over her head and a scarlet veil across her dark features, sat in deep meditation as they entered timidly.

"I must tell the gentleman first and in private," Madame announced, and she dismissed Lydia with a wave of her hand.

One hour later Jerry, a new springiness to his step, emerged from behind the trees where Madame Paula had established her palm-reading parlor. He had time to think it all over while Lydia had here read.

"She's great!" he exclaimed, slapping his hands together as they walked away a little later; "simply great! And you know, Lydia, I think she's right in what she says about me. She says I'd be a great success if I exerted the latent executive power I have—I believe I have got it—but I never realized it before. Madame says she can see it there in every line of my hand—it's entirely up to me to make my own future."

Lydia stifled a giggle of delight in her lace handkerchief.

Then she ushered Jerry over to the "hot dog" booth, from where a delicious odor was steaming.

Within three weeks the idea of Jerry's initiative power had completely stridden in the office under its influence.

It was Jerry who had taken it upon himself to have all the office furniture moved to further efficiency. Then he had executed a working plan to stimulate old accounts. He knew all the time he had it in him, and now he was confident he would succeed, he argued as he went about his work. Wasn't a success written in every line of his palm?

Lydia was delighted to hear it, then quite unprepared for the news, one evening Jerry brought to her.

"He's done it, Lydia," Jerry said, smiling. "He's realized I'm worth more—at last, and he's given me a ten dollar increase this week. After I'd gone about things and seen what I really could do I took some new ideas to him. Told him I'd get another place if he didn't come across—and he did."

Lydia was congratulating him when he took her in his arms and whispered: "It's all because of you, little girl; and now it's time to mutually share our spoils of the battle won. Whenever you're ready, Lydia," he said, "I'm ready to begin first payment on our own little home."

A week later Lydia announced her engagement.

Once, during the luncheon in honor of the occasion, she felt a tiny scruple of conscience when Jerry, in response to a toast, said his success had come about through Lydia as an incentive.

Lydia was gazing at Anne half ashamed for not denying the undue reward, but a knowing smile and a "loved" wink from that mischievous little person reassured her.

And to this day the now very prosperous Jerry doesn't know that the impromptu, mischievously planned scheme of Madame Paula, alias Anne Richardson, was the foundation upon which he built his fortune.

The Best Surprise of All

By Abner Anthony

THERE certainly was a jam in the subway tonight, Mary Ann.

The speaker was a rather frail young girl, and about 20. Her eyes showed the strain characteristic of those who work under the electric light in the business offices and stores of a large city.

"Well, never mind, Lucy, dear," said Mary Ann, tenderly.

"Only a couple of months more, so stick it out, girlie."

A half hour later found Lucy in her tidy kitchen and house slippers. Mary Ann was serving the salad before Lucy offered further comment.

"Gee, but I feel lots better since I ate. Tell me, Mary Ann, didn't you ever want to get married? Every time Joe asks here, he always says that some man missed a good wife when he missed you."

In answer to this volley of questions the older woman smiled, perhaps a bit sadly, but she merely said: "Who'd marry an old lady like me, child?"

"Get into your pretty white dress and slippers. In half an hour Joe will be ringing the hall bell and you won't be near ready unless you hustle."

Mary Ann gave a perhaps nearer 50 than 40. Unmistakably in her day, she must have been a beauty. Even now, her iron gray hair was remarked for its lustrous beauty. But her soft brown eyes told the world that hidden somewhere in their bottomless pools there was a memory, perhaps a great sorrow.

No one that Lucy knew had ever been able to wrest from her lips the cause of the sadness in those eyes.

Five years before Mary Ann met Lucy Aldridge in Kemper Company's department store. Mary Ann was a buyer for the waist department. Lucy had started to learn the great business of "selling" wafers.

Lucy came from the American melting pot, the East Side of New York. Her parents, needing her financial assistance, however slim, sent her to work in the store almost as soon as she graduated from school.

A hard winter and a slim purse saw both of Lucy's parents carried off to the land beyond the sun during an epidemic of pneumonia.

For years Mary Ann had longed to mother a girl like Lucy. She was not a rich woman, but she had a modest little four-room apartment, a good salary and unbounded affection.

And so Lucy came to live with Mary Ann.

"Where's that ever-white gone, Mary Ann?" shouted Lucy from the tiny bathroom. "My slippers are a sight. Why, here it is—booth that I am—right behind the talcum can."

"Are you all right now, Lu?" said

Mary Ann, hurrying toward the bathroom. "I'll be sure you look just right and then I'll run over to Joe's and get some cheese for the rabbit."

Mary Ann was gone but a few moments when the door bell rang. It was Joe.

Lucy's heart began to flutter as she captured the last of her stray hairs with an "invisible" before opening the door.

"Lu," and Joe Wallingford crushed Lu in the embrace characteristic of a big-hearted lover.

When Lu disentangled her hair from Joe's coat buttons she flushed deeply for standing behind Joe was another man.

"Lu, dear," stammered Joe, "this is my uncle, dad's brother."

They were seated in the tiny gray-blue living room before Joe continued. "You see, Uncle Ned is an old back," said Joe playfully. He came in this morning from Brazil. Dad's been showing him the town today and tonight I just made him come along to see the dearest little girl in the world!"

Lucy blushed deeper.

"I can't tell how happy I am to meet the young lady of my nephew's choice and to tell him how fortunate he is."

The last remarks were uttered by a man not less than 50. Tall, straight as an arrow was he. His bronzed complexion and rather sun-burned hair told of a life in the open. The few fine lines around his tender blue eyes lent a certain mellowness to their expression.

His immaculate linen and clothing of superior workmanship bespoke the man of means, the gentleman.

"Almost an hour had passed. The little group talked on every topic of general interest. Finally Joe said: "Uncle Ned, you old batch, why didn't you ever marry? You've been promising all day to tell us sometime why you went away to Brazil. Dad says you went away about twenty years ago and all we know about you is the fact that today you came back rich."

Mr. Wallingford arose and walked toward the window. Outside it was refreshingly cool. Gay groups of young folks sauntered toward the river, to dance on the evening boats. It was summer, love's time. Cupid reigned supreme.

Presently he looked toward Joe and Lucy.

"Children, dear," he said, "another month will see you launch your ship into the sea of matrimony. I hope you will always be as radiantly happy as you are tonight."

"We should love to hear your love story," interrupted Lucy, ever anxious for a bit of romance.

"I'll tell it to you," said Wallingford, as he drew the sedan toward the curb.

"A little over twenty years ago I loved a woman with all my soul. Although I was but a poor boy, I managed, save for the strictest self-denial, enough for a modest little home. And then I asked the woman to share it with me."

For months we planned. As I look back, I can still see the playful smile in those soft brown eyes as she planned where each little household treasure should go.

"Why, Uncle Ned, there's tears in your eyes," said Joe. "Why, what happened; go on, tell us."

"Well," said Wallingford, "our wedding was just a month off, when a lying tongue destroyed forever her happiness and mine. She sent back my ring, refused to see me, and broken-hearted, I left my native land."

"Gee, but look at the money you've made, Uncle," said Joe whose ability as a money maker was somewhat below par.

"Money is quite an empty asset when there is no loved one to enjoy it," remarked Wallingford, as he reached for the gold cigarette case in his pocket.

"Miss Aldridge, if you don't object, I'm going to ask Joe to go to the corner and get his old uncle a pack of 'coffin nails.'"

But before Joe had time to speak

Lucy was saying that if Uncle Ned didn't mind, she would run along with Joe.

They were gone but a few minutes when the door bell rang. Mr. Wallingford pushed the button in the living room which unlocked the door. All ready for a little smoke, he was walking toward the lux-kitchen when he was startled by a voice calling out: "Suppose you thought I never would get back. I ran into Moran and he insisted upon buying me a bunch of sweet peas way over on Eighth avenue. Wonder how he knew it was my birthday?"

Wallingford had heard that voice before. The match burned to a cinder in his fingers. He was like a man turned to stone. Yet his blood roared through his veins with the velocity of a tornado. He could not move.

Mary Ann, in a modest taupe satin gown with a dewy bunch of pink sweet peas caught at her waist, silhouetted charmingly against the gray-blue walls of the living room. Recalling no reply, she had hurried in to look for Lucy. And then, totally unprepared, she came upon—Mr. Wallingford.

"Good God—Ned!" she gasped. Then the objects in the room began to grow dim. The light seemed to leave. Mary Ann had fainted.

Like a father caresses a long lost child, so this man coaxed to consciousness the woman he had loved and lost.

Mary Ann opened her eyes and could scarcely realize that she was really in Ned's arms.

"Is it you, Ned darling—is it really you? How can you ever forgive me?"

"You were gone" only two years when she confessed to me on her death bed that she lied about me. She said she loved you and could not see you marrying me."

Ned crushed her to him and then he tenderly said: "But dead folks can't see, Mary Ann—and, besides—I'm very rich now."

And in another month a store lost two workers instead of one, and the ticket chopper in the subway missed two, pleasant faces from the daily stream of those who do their best all along the line.

Geographically Speaking.

Two Tommies went into a restaurant over on the eastern front and said to the waiter: "We want Turkey with Greece."

The waiter replied: "Sorry, sir, but we can't Serbia."

"Well, then get the Bosphorus."

The boss came in and heard their order and then said: "I don't want to Russia, but you can't Roumania." So the two Tommies went away hungry.

Matrimonial Advice.

"Darling you must never marry a man for his money."
"Why not, mother?"
"Because that sort of marriage can not but end unhappily. But I can tell you what to do. You can take care not to fall in love with a man who hasn't money."

A Disguise That Worked

By Elsie Endicott

If you will only let me see him I'll promise not to be engaged to him," pleaded pretty Marjorie Benton; "but I don't think he is beneath me."

Marjorie and her maiden aunt, Louise Montgomery Benton, were standing near the wide colonial window of their home in Georgia.

Mommy Lou, as Marjorie affectionately called her from babyhood days, looked across the green lawn meditatively, then her searching eyes rested on little Marjorie at her side.

"You know, child, you are of Southern aristocratic blood, and Jack Fuller, as you call him, comes from the peasantry of our land. You simply could not marry him and be happy. It's so—well, I don't know just what to say—but there are much finer men in town."

Marjorie was about to turn away, but her aunt caught her by the hand affectionately.

"Take for instance, Garfield Morris," she said. "He's as nice a man as any girl would want to know—he's away just now, but when he comes home again—why, Marjorie, as I said, he's as nice a young man as any girl would want to know. He's a real man."

Marjorie's eyes flashed for a second, then she shot back, impatiently: "A real man! Why, Mommy Lou, Garfield Morris is afraid of his own shadow."

But Mommy Lou was not satisfied with Marjorie even receiving Jack Fuller only as a friend, as she had finally agreed to the afternoon of the conversation.

He seemed to be taking Marjorie's heart right out of her keeping, and she resented it—not only for the sake of her own well-established social position in the South, but Marjorie must marry a real man and wealthy, she figured.

And so it was on the 11th of July, Mommy Lou came to New York to arrange a sailing on the steamship Cambria to some foreign port where Marjorie, amidst the glamor of new facts and friends, as Mommy Lou planned so psychologically, would forget all about her puppy fascination for Jack Fuller.

She was to find for Marjorie and her governess within a few days, and they would shop together in New York and then sail away. San Salvador was the place Mommy Lou had chosen, and the change and scenery and climate she hoped would be sufficient to bring about as great a change in Marjorie as desired.

The day Marjorie arrived in New York was a scorching hot, sultry day, typical of New York's July weather, but the pretty little blond creature who stepped from the train at her destination was crisp and cool. There wasn't anything in the world could trouble her, for she was young and hopeful, and the whole world looked rosy through her eyes.

As she entered the waiting taxi and gave the name of the hotel to the driver there was a gleam of anticipation in her eyes, a little gleam that unfolded its mystery some weeks later.

"Mommy Lou—I'm so glad to get here and be with you again," she murmured as she threw her very white arms around her aunt's neck and smothered her with kisses.

"But child, dear," her aunt looked in surprise, "where is Susanne, your governess; is she below?"

And Marjorie burst into a torrent of breathless explanation. "Oh, Mommy Lou, I meant to write you, but I thought you'd forgive me for traveling alone as long as I arrived safely; but the day before I left Susanne was taken ill. She had to be operated on for appendicitis, so she went to the hospital. The nurse phoned me last night and said she was doing nicely. I'll take weeks before she can walk—and I thought you wouldn't mind—do you?"

"Why, of course not, Marjorie. I am sorry the unfortunate incident had to happen at this time. I'll write Susanne my sympathy right now. Meanwhile we can get another governess for you right here. I'm sorry you had to come on alone—it's dangerous, you know, traveling alone—but," she said, benevolently, "New York is teeming with the best governesses to be had."

And with that Miss Louise Montgomery Benton, sister of Marjorie's father, picked up the telephone receiver to dictate her telegraphic message to the clerk at the hotel desk below.

"And please see that this little ad is placed in tomorrow's paper," she finished; after she had dictated another little memo detailing the type of governess desirable.

Early next morning as Marjorie was arranging some of her new clothes in the little steamer trunk beside her bed the telephone bell rang and Mommy Lou reached to answer it.

In a moment after she had hung up the receiver a knock on her door announced the first applicant for the position as governess.

"And you play golf also," Miss Benton inquired, taking in the fine, athletic physique of her new applicant after she had interviewed her.

"All right, then; you may begin at once," she said, closing the contract.

"We'll sign it for six months at least," she remarked, "and should anything unforeseen happen, both parties to come to a mutual agreement."

The three remaining days in New Unappreciated Will.

"Men are really too mean for anything."

"What's the trouble now?"

"Why, I asked John for an automobile today and he said that I must be contented with the splendid carriage that nature has given me."

York seemed to fly. Miss Benton had much to attend to and many calls to make. Marjorie and her new governess spent many happy hours together, visiting the aquarium, the parks, the Statue of Liberty and other places of interest. Then the morning came when the steamship Cambria sailed out of New York harbor with the customary farewell excitement.

Days through the moderate climate they sailed, then further down into the hot tropics and through the gulf. The trip was like gold to Marjorie. Her eyes sparkled and danced with a new light and her cheeks were pinker and rounder than ever.

The moon and the stars, under which Marjorie sat out for so many evenings with her governess, to hear all about their astronomical relations, were a constant source of interest to the "dear, enthusiastic child," as her Mommy Lou used to put it in talking with the governess.

To their surprise and Mommy Lou's pleasure, they found Garfield Morris a guest of the same hotel where they were to stay.

It was a week later, after they had dined at Del Palma Beach, that the little mystery which lay behind Marjorie's soft, pensive eyes was revealed.

Marjorie and Garfield and Marjorie's governess were sitting on the beach in the sunbath, and Mommy Lou was canoeing just beyond the palm-fringed embankment. Suddenly they heard a cry. It was a call for help coming from Mommy Lou. Marjorie was startled. She could not swim, so she suddenly turned to Garfield.

"Jump in, Motria," she pleaded, "Mommy Lou's going down; quick, please"—but Morris, panic-stricken, backed away cowering.

"There's alligators in there, child. I—she's probably taken now—let's no use"—he said breathlessly.

And before the frightened spectators, Marjorie's governess sprang in to the water.

There was a struggle, but the powerful physique of the governess overcame Mommy Lou's struggling and she was carried to the shore safely.

A half hour later, when the formal Miss Louise Montgomery Benton came in, she looked up only to encounter the kindly, smiling eyes of the governess—Jack Fuller.

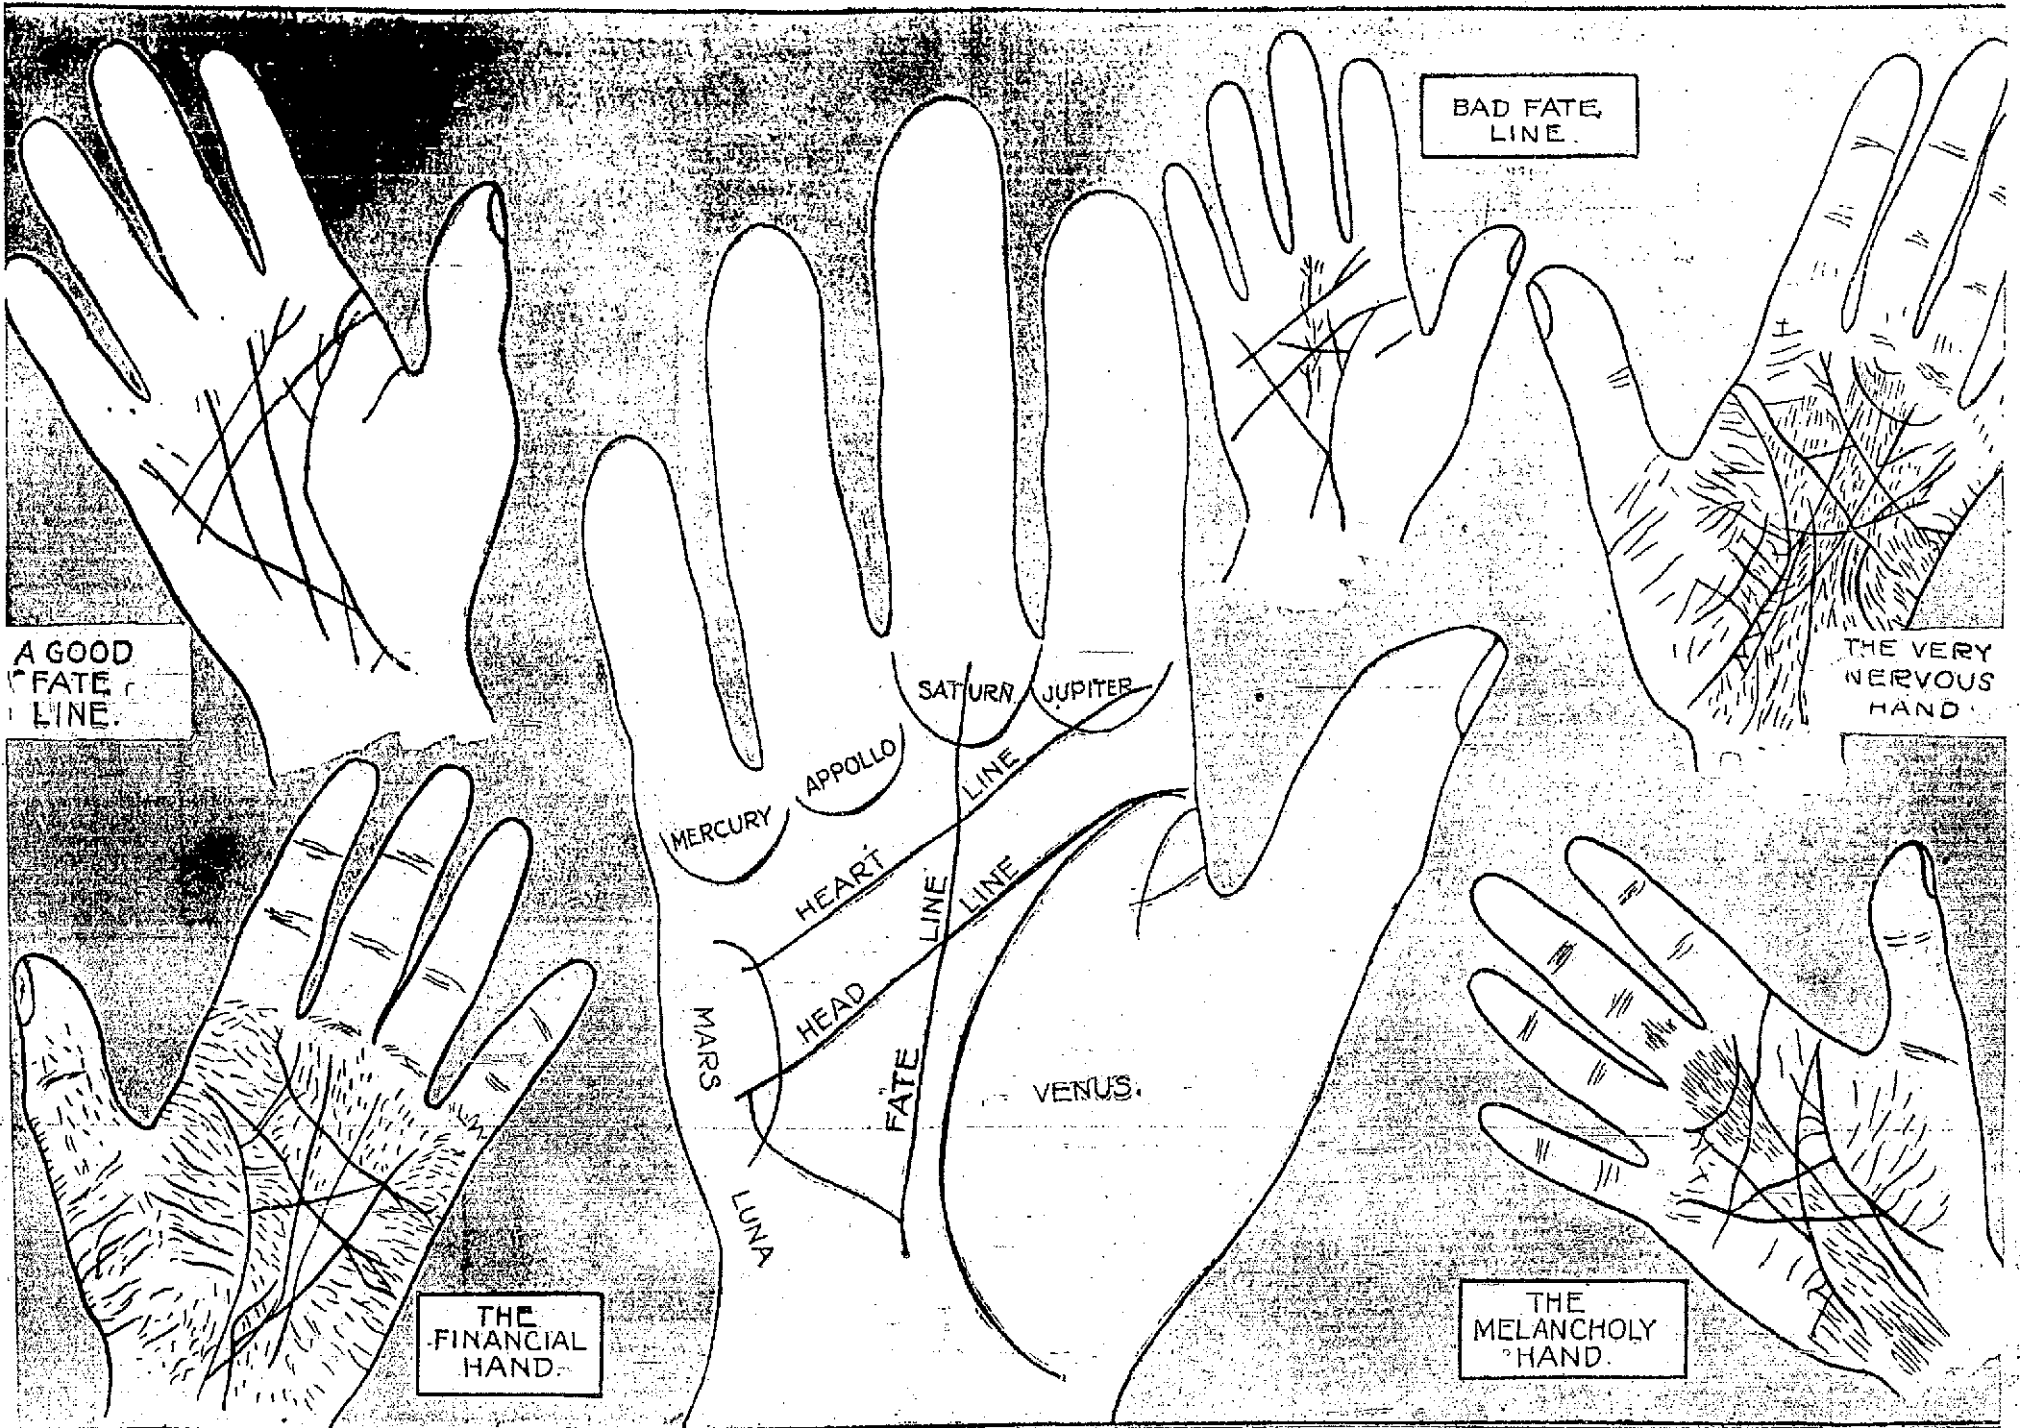

"Mr.—" she began, but her sense of human gratitude was too overwhelming. She simply gazed at him, saying, "Jack—Jack Fuller, what on earth—"

It was Marjorie herself who explained that she and Jack had made up the plan when Susanne had been taken ill so that Jack might prove somehow he was a real man—and not a—

they were back at the hotel, "and I herewith tender my resignation for a higher and nobler position of taking care of Marjorie for life, according to mutual agreement"—he hesitated a moment, but Mommy Lou shook his hand warmly and smilingly consented.

What of the Fate Line in Your Palm?

Is the Palm of Your Hand Dry? Is It Full, Puffy, with Thin, Soft Skin? Then Read What It Means. If It's Hollow, Bad Fortune Is Apt to Follow Its Possessor. Study Your Own Case as Relating to Love, Wealth, Happiness and Other Things

A GOOD FATE LINE.

THE FINANCIAL HAND.

BAD FATE LINE.

THE VERY NERVOUS HAND.

THE MELANCHOLY HAND.

A GOOD FATE LINE.

The art of palmistry has been practiced from ancient times. The Greeks had two words for it, chironomy, the reading of character from the hand, and chiromancy, the reading of the future from the hand.

In every age there have been those who studied the lines upon the hand as a scientific study, with no other idea than to read the story they tell, but for every one who has approached the subject from the scientific standpoint there have been hosts of others who have used palmistry to practice deception upon the public. Clairvoyance, mind reading, fortune telling, astrology, etc., have all been fraudulently connected with palm reading by people who used a natural shrewdness to impose upon the credulous.

And yet it is not unreasonable that the hand should bear a record of what a man is and what he is likely to become. The hand is the instrument of the brain, and at the direction of the brain its skill can create means of expression more eloquent than the tongue itself. The sensitive, highly trained hand of the master violinist surely tells a different story from that of the coarse, hard, thick hand of a dullard.

As no two people are exactly alike, so does the imprint on every palm differ. And the various combinations of lines open the way for infinite variations in the reading of palms. It is a modern discovery that the variation in finger prints afford an infallible means of identification of every individual. The Bertillon system of identification by finger prints was a discovery which has meant much to the world. Perhaps scientific study of other lines in the hand may result in as valuable discoveries.

Palm Reading and Fortune Telling.

skilled palmist could tell from looking at the same maiden's hand whether her emotions or her reason and intellect would be the ruling force in her life. Her own natural tendencies and inclinations might be read very plainly from the record on her palm.

The following interpretations of the lines on the hand have been worked out by palmists who have devoted years to the study of hands. The interpretations are not intended to be applied arbitrarily to any line, or mount, for each must be read in comparison with other lines. Often single characteristics, such as imagination, will be indicated on more than one line or mount, and the balance of the hand must be considered.

An exhaustive study of palmistry includes much that cannot be touched upon in a brief article. Only the main lines and a few of their variations can be explained without touching upon the modifying instance of minor lines and the modification of various combinations of mounts and lines. Not only must the lines in the hands be considered, but their story can be confirmed or modified by the shape, size, and general contour of the hand itself. The hand, which is at once the simplest and most complex instrument ever devised, is worth the closest study and the most serious attention.

What the Fingers Tell of Future.

Both hands must be examined in accurate palm reading. The left hand bears the chart showing the natural characteristics and plan of life, while the right hand records the modifications that the person brought about in his life and the use he has made of his talents. Strong natural tendencies in the left hand may have deteriorated in the right one, or naturally weak tendencies may have been greatly improved through the efforts of the man himself.

When the fingers are not widely apart on the hand it indicates their possessor is not bound by convention; he is inclined toward bohemianism and independence of action. He will be easy to get acquainted with, is not tied down to rules of etiquette.

If the fingers are set very closely together, the opposite characteristics are indicated. He is conventional, formal, self-centered and inclined toward stinginess. Between the two extremes are various combinations of the opposite qualities.

The dry palm usually indicates a person of an industrious nature. If it is also hard, its possessor is apt to be rather domineering and not very sympathetic.

The firm, elastic palm on a well-balanced hand goes with a good, well-balanced mind. It shows a good worker with good capabilities.

A palm that is full, puffy, with thin, soft skin, gives indication that its possessor does not take to work.

A hollow palm is not a good sign. Bad fortune is apt to follow its possessor. He is apt to be unfortunate in business, not because he lacks ability, but because he often uses poor judgment. He can build a good house, but he is more than likely to build it on the sand. He is apt to be too honest to advance his own interests materially.

There are seven mounts on the hand that are the foundation for scientific hand reading. As it is said that mankind can be classified into seven distinct types of people, each mount represents one of the types. The mount which shows the greatest development indicates the type.

These mounts are balls or pads of flesh which bulge from the bases of the fingers and other parts of the hand. In some hands the bulges are absent, and depressions are located where they are usually found, or else the hand is perfectly flat at that point. The absence of a mount is read, of course, with exactly the opposite characteristics that would be indicated by a well-developed mount.

Names have been given to the mounts which have been generally accepted by palmists, not because the names themselves signify anything, but in order to locate the mounts without confusion.

The mount at the base of the first finger is called Jupiter; at the second, Saturn; at the third, Apollo; and the fourth, Mercury. The fleshy pad between the life line to the second joint of the thumb is called the mount of Venus. Situated about midway between the fourth finger and the wrist is the mount of Mars, and below it toward the wrist and extending toward the life line is the mount of Luna.

By carefully noting the development of each mount and their relative size and location, the general type to which a person belongs is determined.

The mount of Jupiter indicates ambition, leadership, honor, capability. It is one of the best mounts, and where it shows the greatest prominence its possessor is indicated as a person of influence among men, he is a natural leader and capable one. His character is strong and positive and well balanced.

Tells Who Is Poor Mixer in Society.

The mount of Saturn indicates soberness, gloom, prudence, slowness, love of solitude and seriousness and earnestness in whatever is undertaken. A well-developed mount of Saturn indicates a man who is not a good mixer in society. He is too serious-minded, he prefers his own society to that of others, and as he takes a gloomy outlook on life, his associates are apt to leave him alone. He prefers to work by himself, and hence chooses occupations of that nature. Many of the great scientists who have devoted years to solitary research belong to this type.

A highly developed mount of Apollo is very desirable. It shows artistic ability, brilliancy and splendid intellectual qualities. Success and happiness are due its possessor. The mount of Mercury indicates business abilities, shrewdness and industry. With those who have a predominating mount of Mercury the commercial fields will be the place their greatest success will lie.

The development of the mount of Venus indicates the quality of love, sympathy, grace, passion and vitality. People who have highly developed mounts of Venus possess personal magnetism and attract the love of the opposite sex. They are people who have well-developed tastes in the riches and beauty that make life attractive.

The mount of Mars shows the war qualities which one possesses, courage, self-control, aggressiveness, quarrelsomeness, cruelty and brutality.

The mount of Luna tells of the imagination, fancy, melancholy, selfishness, capriciousness and dreaminess of an individual.

Thus it will be seen that while one mount predominates and indicates the types, the relative importance of the other mounts must be taken into consideration. For instance, a hand where the mount of Mercury predominates, showing commercial ability, the mount of Mars is likely to be also well-developed, showing aggressiveness and coolness. The mount of Apollo, with its artistic tendencies, is apt to balance well with the mount of Luna, which also shows imaginative qualities of varying degrees, dreaminess, etc.

The length of the fingers are taken into consideration in reading the mounts. A finger longer than ordinary increases the force of qualities, while one shorter than usual decreases the force of a mount.

The life line encircles the mount of Venus. It begins between the first finger and the thumb and curves downward to the wrist. As a general thing, the longer the life line the longer the life, and the smoother it is and free from breaks and interruptions the greater the health indicated, but length of life can not be read out of the life line. Breaks in it do not necessarily mean death unless confirmation of the sign is also found on the heart line, head line or line of Mercury. Anyone who has hopes of becoming an accurate reader of hands must make it a practice from the start to read the lines of the hand in connection with each other. If the life line is deep and well cut and a good color, the subject has a good current of life coursing through a good channel. If the line is shallow, broad or chained, the subject does not possess the energy of the one with the deeper and more definite line.

Where the life line rises is important. Here it shows one whose love is tant. When the life line is closely joined to the head line, as if one line for some distance, its owner is cautious, reticent and conservative. He is governed by reason and is slow in entering changes or risks. These people are not usually egotistical, but are honest and upright.

Indicates More Self-Confidence.

A medium space between the life line and the head line indicates greater freedom of action and more self-confidence. This subject may not be any more successful than the previous one, but he will be more at ease in life and will enjoy it better. The medium space shows medium-balanced minds, who think for themselves. If the space is very wide, such a person in thinking for himself becomes egotistical, headstrong, and does not care much what others think of his conduct or opinions. You can expect to find him on the opposite side of questions, and glorying in his differences.

If the life line rises high in the mount of Jupiter, these qualities are intensified. If the line sweeps far out into the hand, giving Venus a wide scope, strong physical health and great vitality is indicated. The closer it hugs the thumb, the lower vitality indicated. The fate line, or the line of Saturn as it is sometimes called, is more closely allied to the life line than any other line in the hand, and must be read in connection with it.

The heart line is the first main line crossing the palm under the mounts of the fingers. It is a very important line, as it indicates the heart qualities both organically and temperamentally. If the line is strong, of a good color and length, without breaks or interruptions, it indicates a vigorous heart, with the characteristics found in people with vigorous hearts and good blood supply, warm, full of life and energy and magnetism. On the contrary, those with weak hearts and poor blood supply are inclined to be cold-natured, inactive and less genial.

The location of the start of the heart line is important. Frequently it starts on the mount of Jupiter. Starting here it shows one whose love is ideal and to whom love is necessary. Even in poverty it is attractive. Rising between Jupiter and Saturn, the heart line shows less sentimentality and more common sense and practicality. Sentiment does not overrule all other qualities, but is taken with a bit of reason. Rising in Saturn, the heart line shows sensualism predominates. If the heart line drops toward the head line or joins it in the wrist, it shows that the head and not the heart is the strongest force in a life. The relative length, position and depth of the heart and head lines will tell much in regard to the predominating influence in a life.

The head line lies below the heart line and rises near the life line. If it starts with a wide space between the life line, the subject is independent, even headstrong, egotistical and inclined to take chances and risks. Shows When One Is Ruled by Reason.

When the head line starts more toward Jupiter and runs back toward or touching the life line, the subject has some of the first tendencies, but is more ruled by reason and has more of the characteristics of the Jupiter mount. When the lines of head and life are joined closely together for some distance at the beginning, the possessor is bashful and lacking in self-confidence, cautious and nervous. The well-balanced person has a head line which rises near the life line but leaves a little space between. He is guided by reason, but is not too cautious and has confidence tempered with judgment. A head line starting within the life line is not a very favorable one, for it shows irritable, disagreeable, vacillating characteristics.

The direction and length of the head line are important. A long, straight, well-defined line shows mental ability but lacks of imagination and economical tendencies. If the line drops decidedly toward the mount of Luna, the characteristic of that mount of imagination, dreaminess, etc., are intensified. If the line, instead of turning down, turns upward toward the mount of Mercury, the commercial tendencies of that mount are intensified.

PLAN TAG DAY FOR SERBIAN DRIVE

Benefit for Children in Devastated Countries
Local Serbians Have Already Raised $1,500 for Their Countrymen

To further the drive for food and clothing for devastated Serbia and northern France today is to be a "Tag Day." Some of Fresno's well-known ladies will solicit on the streets for whatever funds the public wishes to donate. In return, tag, representing a real firecracker, will be placed upon the donor's coat. Some Serbian ladies will be with the workers dressed in the costume of their native land.

Mrs. G. H. Huntington is chairman of the "Tag Day" committee, with Mrs. Emil Gundelfinger as vice-chairman. They will have their headquarters at the Fresno Hotel throughout the day. Mrs. Huntington has arranged the details for the day. She plans to have the workers out from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M., and will give each one a certain part of the business section, so that all the day will be covered. She has notified her collectors to accept any donation, no long as it is 10 cents or over. Both the chairman and the vice-chairman hope to be able to raise a great portion of the total drive funds with today's activities.

Serbian Donors $1,500

During the past month the Serbians of this city have responded generously to the call of their former countrymen. Money, food, clothing, house-to-house, clothing, $1,500 was raised and has been sent to Serbia to be divided among those who are in the most distress. Of this sum $500 was sent to Major E. J. Swift of the American Red Cross, stationed in the province of Belgrade. The remaining $1,000 was sent in equal amounts to relief headquarters in the provinces of Herzegovina and Ducha De Canaro.

Miss Macevitch, one of the leading Serbians in the present drive, has received letters from the relatives, telling of their actual conditions and the spirit of thankfulness that they have for the United States. One letter is from Miss Macevitch's brother, Todor, translated to read: "If it was not for the Red Cross hundreds of people would be dying daily, and it seems that the Red Cross will not be able to cope with our condition much longer, and then what? We are praying that the American people will help us. We appreciate greatly the good America has already done, in return for which the Serbian people look upon you as the greatest nation in the world. You ought to feel proud to be in such a wonderful country, where everybody is so kind and food and clothing to tide them through the winter."

Mr. Macevitch has other letters from Serbia, one of them being an appeal from Major Swift, and all stating the almost unbelievable conditions, which already exist, and which are becoming more acute each day.

Yesterday's Activities

The drive authorities state that there has not yet been time for the drive to get well underway. Subscriptions, which have been sent all over the county, will not be returned for several days, as they were mailed only yesterday morning, and the workers have not had time to give the right publicity to the work. However, it is hoped that beginning today more definite action can be taken, with better results.

For the past week Corporal William Curtis has been lecturing at the schools and theatres throughout the county. Yesterday he spoke at the Liberty, Kluge and Hippodrome theaters, and tonight he will speak at the same places. During the day Corporal Curtis has been working with Mr. Macevitch collecting funds at the business establishments and helping with the clothing that is pouring in.

Further activities have been those of the ladies, who have been stationed at the exits of the theaters to receive any funds given. The ladies, who are doing this work are: Mrs. A. H. McKenzie, Miss Anne Tupper, Mrs. Ward McIntire, Mrs. Harry Gregory, Miss Robert Clark, Mrs. Ruth Church, Miss Irma Clinton, Mrs. Sam Clark, Miss Ella Hessel, Mrs. J. W. Ruchman, Mrs. Kate Smith, Mrs. L. Smith, Mrs. E. Gundelfinger, Mrs. Arthur Perkins and Mrs. Ward.

Some men think that when they've paid the bills, they've done their duty toward making home happy—and in some homes they have.

ASKS WRECK-DAMAGES

Because a Southern Pacific train collided with and wrecked a truck which his household goods were being transported to this city from San Francisco, Henry Bloch yesterday brought an action for damages against H. Krieger, owner of the truck, and Walter D. Hines, federal railroad administrator.

The complaint alleges negligence against both Krieger and the employee of the railroad chief. The household goods were smashed and scattered over the Belmont avenue crossing, he alleges. He asks $200 in damages.

OFFICER SHOWN WILL FACE CHARGES

Left Fresno for East; Is Due to Return Sunday

Accused Man Recommended for Commission in France

Bob Shoun, accused of extortion while a member of the Fresno police force, who left Fresno Wednesday night for Canton, Ohio, will be back in time to answer the charges filed against him, according to his brother, Guy Shoun. The ex-patrolman, it is announced, left Fresno with the understanding that if he was wanted for a district attorney's office he would be on hand. A statement was issued for his arrest yesterday by the district attorney's office, and he will be formally arrested as soon as he returns. Before leaving restitution of the money paid by Astor Minkian was made by the ex-officer offices.

Minkian, who paid the money, made the stipulation that anything was to appear in the newspapers of the complaint made against him by three girls, who, he said, asked him for money to go to a show. They charged that he was annoying them. This statement was made by Deputy Sheriff M. S. Mecklenburg.

For several days prior to the discovery of the identity of the officer who had figured in the case rumors circulated about the city that "some one was impersonating an officer and that an American had been victimized by the individual in question. It was not until the name Campbell, signed to the receipt was brought into the case that the matter was brought to a head by Chief Deputy Campbell making an exhaustive investigation with P. S. Mecklenburg.

The discovery of the identity of the alleged principal in the extortion case fell like a thunder clap on the heads of the police department from the fact that Patrolman Shoun was an ex-serviceman, had served nine months in the United States Coast Artillery, though only 25 years old.

Another factor that contributed to the consternation of his superior officers was that his brother, Guy Shoun, has been a member of the Fresno police department for six years and is one of the most reliable men in the department and was recently head of the traffic squad.

MAIL CARRIERS BITTEN BY DOGS

No More Deliveries Where Vicious Dogs Are Kept, Hughes

The third instance within a few weeks in which a letter carrier was bitten by a dog led Postmaster Harry Hughes to announce yesterday that hereafter mail men will not be required to deliver mail in homes where vicious dogs are kept.

H. L. Rogers, a carrier, was bitten severely in the leg yesterday while delivering mail at a residence on North Second street. He is now under the care of a physician, and it is hoped that he will escape without serious results.

"Wherever the carrier complains of a vicious dog at a residence he is not required by law to deliver mail there," said Mr. Hughes last night. "This is the third instance of the kind within four weeks, and hereafter where the owner has a vicious dog that is let run in the yard the carrier will not deliver mail to that number."

ARREST RANCHER FOR BAD CHECK

A. P. Hicks, a rancher, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Henry of Sheriff Jones' staff on the charge of having passed a worthless check for $500 on the Bank of Central California.

Hicks said he had received the check in payment for a sale of hay from a man named Tell, but the check was declared by the bank to be fictitious, arrested yesterday afternoon before City Justice Graham and held for $1,000. Hicks was unable to give bail.

JUVENILE TELLS HOW AUTOS ARE ROBBED

During an inquiry into some juvenile court matters yesterday Judge Austin accidentally uncovered an old form of robbery in a new form. It is the theft of articles from the unoccupied seats of automobiles, including hat boxes, purses, valuables, wearing apparel and packages.

It has been known for some time that much of this form of robbery is committed by the victims of such thefts that the articles are discarded while the automobiles were parked on the streets, though the loss was often not discovered until the material reached home.

But a juvenile informant informed the judge that he had been told by boys locally was committed by boys by means of a machine, which he said he had seen. He said he knew of a machine of this kind which was being used by other boys in a similar fashion.

"Well, tell us what these boys are," the court suggested. "By a little warning we may save these youngsters from becoming criminals for good."

But the young informant suddenly developed a case of false modesty with the result that the nature of the alleged crime was not disclosed. The boy was remanded back to the detention home pending a decision in his case.

Y DRIVE HAS CITY'S SANCTION

Meeting Tomorrow to Report Pledge Validations

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. drive of details are in high spirits over the probability of a 100 per cent validation of the pledges which are to be reported and checked up on at the many meeting tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce building. Early reports are coming in every day, and to reach 100 per cent before the board after 100 per cent.

George A. Porter, secretary of the Y, asserts that the drive has been successful and that remains to be a short campaign for the $100,000 not yet pledged. He considers that part of this sum will be raised through present donors, who are willing to increase their contributions. The remainder, he states, will be raised through small cash donations. This business is to be put before the executive committee, and from workers to increase for their vote.

Prominent men and women of this city are greatly interested in the drive. They unanimously agree that it must go through, and that Fresno must not be behind other cities in respect to the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. drive. H. Z. Austin says: "There are no two ways about it. The drive must go through. Fresno needs these new buildings, and that is all there is to it." In respect to the drive District Attorney C. E. Henderson states: "I am in favor of the wonderful work that the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. are doing, and I hope that they make this drive a success, and receive twice the amount if they can use it. The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. are doing a very good thing for the young men."
